Ranger's Moon Pictures Prove Of Little Worth

Nine Members Of One Family Perish In Fire

BUCKLAND, Mass. (AP) — Six children and three adults — all members of one family—perished Sunday in a fire which destroyed a two-story converted farmhouse in this western Massachusetts village.

The only survivor of the blaze was Robert Deome Jr., 11, a mentally retarded child who escaped the flames by plunging through a pane of glass on a rear door.

His mother, Mrs. Robert Deome, 32, and a brother, Charles, 6, were among those who perished in the fire.

Also killed were his grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Raymond R. Crandall, aged 66 and 63 respectively, and five first cousins, ranging in age from 2 to 10.

The five cousins of the young survivor were the children of Everett Crandall of Springfield and Mrs. Wilbur Rogers of Greenfield. The mother remarried after a divorce.

Mrs. Rogers, an expectant mother, was not told immediately that her five children were dead. Frightened and sobbing hysterically, young Robert Deome kept repeating, "I have only one parent now. I have only one parent now."

Police quoted him as saying, "Everybody was running around inside."

Young Deome's father has been a patient at the Monson State Hospital for the mentally ill for some time, police said.

They also said the Crandall grandparents had custody of the five Crandall children since the parents' divorce.

Priests, Nuns Leave Terror Belt In Katanga

LEOPOLDVILLE, the Congo, (AP)—The United Nations reported Sunday the successful evacuation of all white priests and nuns from the terror belt of northern Katanga.

In arranging the flights to safety, however, Maj. Dick Lawson, the British officer charged with a one-man mercy mission, was attacked and beaten in the village of Mbula.

But Lawson reported he and a Congolese officer with him escaped and are now on their way back to Leopoldville to give a full report. In his preliminary message to U.N. headquarters here, Lawson did not say who his assailants were.

Lawson, 35, has flown in and out of ravaged villages surrounded by mutinous troops for the past week. He has been unarmed and, much of the time, alone. U.N. headquarters said the Briton—attached to a Nigerian U.N. unit—volunteered for the assignment, a preliminary to large-scale U.N. military measures to restore order to the Lulaba River basin.

Nothing was said in his brief report about the Kivu Province town of Kindu, where about 80 white residents were reported by the United Nations to be in danger from soldiers and roaming terrorists.

4 Children Die In Fire

CLIFTON, Va. (AP)—Fire killed four children when it gutted a frame dwelling near here early Sunday.

Lt. David Eike of the Fairfax County police identified the victims as children of Mr. and Mrs. Sam Jackson who, he said, were away at a party when the tragedy struck.

Antenna Shift Weakens Signal Reaching Earth

PASADENA, Calif. (AP)—Scientists said Sunday that spacecraft Ranger 3, which aimed at the moon but missed, took pictures of its target Sunday as it sped past—but they may not be of acceptable quality.

They said the 727-pound rocket streaked across the moon's path Sunday afternoon and then hurtled into space beyond in a sweeping orbit around the sun.

Trackers at Goldstone gave the Ranger orders for the crucial maneuvers while the pictures were being taken.

Scientists said the rocket did everything perfectly except one important procedure: "It didn't keep an antenna pointing at the earth."

As a result, the TV camera's signal to earth was weaker than it should have been. The signal received by Goldstone, said the scientists, was overcome by noise and seems meaningless.

Scientists were attempting to remove the noise and unmask the signal. But a JPL spokesman said, "There is little hope that it will produce any beneficial results."

The trackers said the rocket passed the moon at a closest distance of 22,862 miles at 3:23 p.m. Sunday at a speed of 4,188 miles per hour.

As it neared the tiny probe, the moon looked like a pockmarked cueball—half in light and half in shadow.

Scientists hoped Ranger's camera would duplicate the feat of a 1959 Soviet lunar vehicle, which photographed the fabled dark side of the moon.

In the science fiction of Jules Verne the dark side of the moon was studied with remnants of a long-dead civilization. But the Soviet rocket photographed only more peaks and craters of the dreary lunar landscape—exciting only because they had never been seen before.

Late Recluse's Home Yields Five Possible Strads

NARETH, Wales (AP) — Top violinists comb the world for a Stradivarius. But old Herman Ide, 85, who dressed and lived like a down-and-out, may have had five of them.

When the recluse died here five months ago his dingy, stone-walled house was crammed with rubbish. As local officials poked among the clutter of dusty furniture, they found five violins bearing the name of the master Italian craftsman, Antonius Stradivarius.

Strads are rare and old Herman's hoard could be worth a fortune.

"Perhaps 100,000 pounds ($250,000), if they turn out to be the authentic work of Stradivarius," said one expert.

This week dealers from all over Britain will flock to this quiet little Welsh village to examine the five violins in question and 113 others found with them. A local hall has been booked for Thursday, when the instruments will be sold at auction.

Japan Plans Satellite

TOKYO (AP)—Japan has disclosed plans to launch its first space satellite in about five years—with the help of a U.S. rocket.

Kennedy And M'Cormack Senate Race Shaping Up

BOSTON (AP)—The Massachusetts Democratic State Committee has been advised to stay out of the way while a Kennedy and a M'Cormack fight it out for the U.S. Senate seat vacated by President Kennedy.

The Democratic primary fight would involve Edward M. Kennedy, youngest brother of the President, and Edward J. M'Cormack Jr., nephew of John W. M'Cormack, speaker of the U.S. House.

Young Kennedy is an assistant district attorney in Boston. M'Cormack is Massachusetts attorney general.

Although neither officially has announced his candidacy, top Massachusetts Democrats have been talking for some weeks now

Bodies Of Two Pa. Boys Found In Old Clay Mine

PHILIPSBURG, Pa. (UPI) — The bodies of two boys were found crushed Sunday in an abandoned clay mine almost exactly two weeks to the hour when they left their homes in nearby Osceola Mills bent on an "adventure."

Clearfield County Coroner Robert Heath said an autopsy performed by Drs. Bruce Push and William Howe at Philipsburg State Hospital disclosed the boys had died of multiple fractures of the skull soon after they had entered the cave. The victims, Larry Husted, 10, and Wesley Lowe, 13, were identified by their uncles.

Eugene Husted and Ernest Lowe, fathers of the victims who had kept constant vigil at the scene of rescue operations, said they "would rather not be asked to make the identity." The fathers sent their brothers to the hospital to establish identity.

The first body was discovered by Marshall Dixon, operating a dragline equipped with a bucket capable of scooping three cubic yards of dirt at a time.

He stopped the operation shortly before 2:30 p.m. and pointed to fellow rescue workers. The first body was removed and hand digging was required to lift the second body.

Larry and Wesley were last seen at 2:30 p.m. two weeks ago Sunday when they left their homes to enter the mine.

Hundreds of volunteer rescuers directed by a team of mine inspectors worked around the clock in efforts to reach the boys who were believed to have entered an area where they had a "club-house."

Southern Maryland Blanketed By Snow

By The Associated Press
Snow and high winds swept into Southern Maryland and the lower Eastern Shore Sunday, but by 8 p. m. the snowfall was stopping. The Pocomoke City area bore the brunt of the storm, reporting six inches of snow on the ground. Salisbury, Patuxent and Leonardtown each had three inches.

The Virginia portion of the Delmarva Peninsula — Accomack and Northampton counties — had six inches of snow and drifts up to two feet deep. Slight accumulations were reported on the Eastern Shore as far north as Bridgeville, Del.

Virginia Buried Under 2-12 Inches Of Snow

RICHMOND, Va. (AP)—A winter storm of unexpected severity whipped across Virginia Sunday, burying most of the state under snow that ranged in depth from two to 12 inches.

Only the mountainous southwest, where snow usually falls deepest, and Northern Virginia escaped the fury of the storm which blew in the early morning hours out of the Carolinas.

Avalanche Kills Two

GARMISCH-PARTENKIRCHEN, Germany (AP) — Two German girls perished in an avalanche which buried a group of five skiers in the Bavarian Alps near here Saturday night. The party, including four girls and a young man, was struck on a slope of Mt. Alpspit. The man and two of the girls were able to free themselves. The bodies of the two others were found by a rescue team.

Urban Dept. Move Made By Kennedy

Message Advises Congress Cabinet Division Planned

PALM BEACH, Fla. (AP) — President Kennedy, acting promptly as he promised, signed a message to Congress Sunday advising the legislators he plans to set up a new Cabinet department of urban affairs and housing.

The weekend White House, announcing the signing, did not immediately give details of the President's message in behalf of a Cabinet-level new department to deal with the increasing problems of America's cities. The message is expected to be submitted formally to Congress on Tuesday.

Kennedy has promised an all-out fight to establish by executive order this new department to which he says he intends to name Robert C. Weaver as secretary.

Weaver, now head of the federal Housing and Home Finance Agency, would thus become the first Negro to hold a Cabinet post.

The President's action indicates he is ready for a showdown with Congress to get his campaign-promised urban affairs department.

His plan is set up under the Reorganization Act of 1949, under which the Department of Health, Education and Welfare was established by presidential order.

Under this act, the new department of urban affairs could automatically be created unless either branch of Congress—House or Senate—votes it down within 60 calendar days of receiving Kennedy's plan.

There is a bill pending in Congress to create the new department but the House Rules Committee last Wednesday voted 9-6 against reporting it to the House for floor action—thus effectively shelving it. The measure was approved earlier by the Government Affairs Committee.

Red Attackers Force Laotian Troops Back

LUANG PRABANG, Laos (AP) — Communist attackers have crossed the mountains northeast of Nam Tha, forcing royal army defenders to fall back from ridge positions 10 miles east of the northwest Laotian stronghold, military officers reported Sunday.

A U.S. military adviser returning from the area, 100 miles north of this royal capital, called the situation "fluid," a military term often used when defensive positions are breached.

Maj. Gen. Bounleuth Samcham, the royal army commander, declared on his return from Nam Tha, however, "We will defend the town."

The government still was flying in reinforcements and reports from Nam Tha said the army was trying to organize a new defense perimeter closer to the town.

Officers reported there has been little fighting in the past two days as both sides maneuvered for positions of attack and defense.

Cuba Executes Three Accused Saboteurs

HAVANA (UPI) — Three men accused of sabotaging urban transport service with incendiary bombs supplied by the American "intelligence service" were executed by a firing squad Saturday night, it was announced Sunday.

The counter-revolutionaries were rejected their pleas for mercy, the announcement said. They were identified as Rolando Rocha Mendez, Rene Lopez Menendez and Manuel Lopez Dominguez.

Space Flight Checks Start All Over Again

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (AP) — It started all over again, Sunday—the checking and rechecking of the rocket engines, the passenger accommodations, the weather and waves around the world—as the United States doggedly resumed its attempt to send a man in orbit around the earth.

Despite time off for church services, even astronaut John H. Glenn Jr. had a busy day, as Project Mercury operations director Walter C. Williams ordered the far-flung Mercury system to gear up for another try as early as Thursday.

Glenn attended an hour-long evaluation session at 9 a.m. After church he returned to the astronauts' quarters, donned his space suit at 2:30 p.m. and underwent an hour-long simulated space flight at 4 p.m. His backup pilot, Navy Lt. Cmdr. Scott M. Carpenter followed Glenn in the space trainer for an hour-long dress rehearsal of his own.

Meanwhile, engineers and technicians went through a six-hour practice of the launch-day countdown.

Showing up for Presbyterian church services, the Marine Corps lieutenant colonel gave no outward sign of having spent more than five disappointing hours curled up on his space couch Saturday, when heavy clouds moved in to mess up his date with the stars.

For Glenn, the new delay meant a return, probably Monday, to more simulated flights, more physical and coordination checks, and later in the week, more low-residue diet meals.

For technicians of the National Aeronautics and Space Administration, it meant dumping the liquid oxygen out of the Atlas, drying out the fuel tanks, and refurnishing the capsule's environmental control system, which protects the astronaut from heat and the vacuum of space, and provides him with air to breathe.

NASA officials are still hoping to have another go at it on Thursday or Friday, weather and a couple of thousand other things permitting.

Farm Failures To Bring New Soviet Party Meeting

MOSCOW (AP)—Premier Khrushchev will summarize the state of Soviet agriculture after another year of failures at a special meeting of the Communist Party Central Committee March 5.

This was disclosed Sunday in the party press, which said the meeting will make a complete review of agricultural difficulties that have left shelves bare of good meat and short on other food. A call for the special meeting was issued Saturday.

There is nothing in the Soviet Union remotely resembling famine such as has plagued Red China for the past three years. But agriculture has become a major stumbling block in efforts to bring Soviet living standards up to Western European and U.S. levels. And the continued sluggishness of agriculture threatens to defeat Khrushchev's efforts to out of repair.

JFK, Nik May Tape TV Show

PALM BEACH, Fla. (AP) — White House press secretary Pierre Salinger, now in Paris, is expected to talk over with Russian press chief Mikhail Khramov ways of getting across U.S. views in the Soviet Union.

That was the word here Sunday from Salinger's White House press assistant, Andrew Hatcher.

But Hatcher said he did not know whether the idea of a possible exchange of television interviews between President Kennedy and Russian Premier Khrushchev might also be a topic of conversation.

NBC White House correspondent Sander Vanocur in a noon broadcast from Washington said it would be. He said details of plans for President Kennedy to appear on Soviet television and Khrushchev on American TV would be worked out late Sunday or early Monday in Paris.

Hatcher said, in response to a question, that he knew Khramov was in Paris this weekend and he expected Salinger to see him.

But he emphasized that this meeting was just incidental and not the reason for the weekend trip to Paris by Kennedy's press secretary.

Before Salinger left here for Paris on Saturday, it was announced he went to meet with Edward R. Murrow, head of the U.S. Information Agency and embassy press officers from Allied capitals.

They were scheduled to confer Monday morning and Salinger is due back in Washington Tuesday in time for a White House luncheon at which Soviet editor and Mrs. Alexei Adzhubei will be guests of President and Mrs. Kennedy.

Congo Premier Protests Soviet U.N. Council Call

LAGOS, Nigeria (AP) — Premier Cyrille Adoula of the Congo strongly protested Sunday the Soviet call for a U.N. Security Council meeting on the Congo, saying, "It can only bring further confusion."

Adoula asserted five of the Congo's provinces now are under central government control and he believes President Moise Tshombe of the sixth province—secessionist Katanga—is trying to work out a satisfactory solution.

Here for the Lagos meeting of chiefs of African governments, Adoula said he had made his views known in a cable to U.N. Acting Secretary-General U Thant. He also announced he is going to the United Nations in New York this week "to explain the situation."

In calling for the meeting of the Security Council Tuesday, the Soviet Union charged the United Nations in the Congo was lagging in efforts to get rid of white mercenaries in Katanga. Adoula declared at a news conference Tshombe has made arrangements with the United Nations to dismiss the remaining mercenaries.

The premier said he believes Tshombe is evidently trying to adhere to the eight-point agreement he signed at Kitona in December. Under this agreement, Tshombe recognized authority of the central government and agreed to get rid of hired foreign soldiers.

Adoula's reference to control of five Congolese provinces apparently was to the collapse of leftist Antoine Gizenga in Oriental Province.

Vote Slated On Six-Point Declaration

Individual Nations Will Decide Which Steps They'll Take

PUNTA DEL ESTE, Uruguay (AP)—Hemisphere foreign ministers agreed Sunday night to draft a six-point declaration blasting Prime Minister Fidel Castro's Communist regime and creating machinery for economic sanctions against Cuba.

Although the declaration falls short of Washington's goals, U.S. sources predicted it would be solidly backed by a substantial majority of the 20 American republics and achieve "eminently effective" results.

The agreement broke a week-long deadlock on what action to take against Castro and cleared the way for adjournment of the conference Tuesday night.

Informants said delegations will be permitted to vote for or against each part of the final resolution. Near unanimous support is expected for all but the strongest sections.

Voluntary Measures

The key point centers on the introduction of voluntary measures to be taken by individual countries — rather than mandatory steps — under the charter of the Organization of American States.

This leaves the door open for members of the go-easy, seven-nation bloc, led by Brazil and Mexico, to sidestep the harsher aspects of the declaration. The voluntary measure also would relieve them of taking steps that might be unpopular back home.

But a U.S. delegation source expressed confidence that at least 17 nations would vote for the even more drastic steps embodied in the declaration. He said all 20 will back a statement branding the Castro regime incompatible with the inter-American system.

A unanimous vote also is expected for a general statement citing the inconsistency and dangers of communism in the Western Hemisphere.

The U.S. source said the toughest tactic to sell to the holdouts has been the expulsion or suspension of the Cuban regime from all agencies of the OAS.

Ouster Question Unsettled

Representatives of the go-easy bloc and the hard-line group led by the United States still are negotiating the key point—whether to oust the Castro regime immediately or to turn the question over to a legal study committee.

All 20 members are agreed on the immediate banning of Cuba from the Inter-American Defense Board. But this merely makes formal a blackballing of the Castro regime that has been in effect since April 1961.

Foreign Minister Francisco Sanches Dantas of Brazil, which along with Mexico has been leading the soft bloc, told reporters: "I think something good is going to come from this meeting. It will not be a negative one."

Dantas said an accord already has been reached in principle on the incompatibility of the Castro regime with the inter-American system and on the creation of an OAS security commission as a consultative organ.

White House Staffer To Accompany Jackie

PALM BEACH, Fla. (AP)—A member of the White House press staff will accompany Mrs. John F. Kennedy when the First Lady goes to India and Pakistan for what is now viewed as a "semi-official" visit.

Assistant White House press secretary Andrew Hatcher said Sunday it is possible President Kennedy's press secretary, Pierre Salinger, will go along on the March trip.

Ranger's Moon Pictures Prove Of Little Worth

Nine Members Of One Family Perish In Fire

BUCKLAND, Mass. (AP)—Six children and three adults — all members of one family—perished Sunday in a fire which destroyed a two-story converted farmhouse in this western Massachusetts village.

The only survivor of the blaze was Robert Deome Jr., 11, a mentally retarded child who escaped the flames by plunging through a pane of glass on a rear door.

His mother, Mrs. Robert Deome, 32, and a brother, Charles, 6, were among those who perished in the fire.

Also killed were his grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Raymond R. Crandall, aged 66 and 63 respectively, and five first cousins, ranging in age from 2 to 10.

The five cousins of the young survivor were the children of Everett Crandall of Springfield and Mrs. Wilbur Rogers of Greenfield. The mother remarried after a divorce.

Mrs. Rogers, an expectant mother, was not told immediately that her five children were dead. Frightened and sobbing hysterically, young Robert Deome kept repeating, "I have only one parent now. I have only one parent now."

Police quoted him as saying, "Everybody was running around inside."

Young Deome's father has been a patient at the Monson State Hospital for the mentally ill for some time, police said.

They also said the Crandall grandparents had custody of the five Crandall children since the parents' divorce.

Priests, Nuns Leave Terror Belt In Katanga

LEOPOLDVILLE, the Congo. (AP)—The United Nations reported Sunday the successful evacuation of all white priests and nuns from the terror belt of northern Katanga.

In arranging the flights to safety, however, Maj. Dick Lawson, the British officer charged with a one-man mercy mission, was attacked and beaten in the village of Mbula.

But Lawson reported he and Congolese officer with him escaped and are now on their way back to Leopoldville to give a full report. In his preliminary message to U.N. headquarters here, Lawson did not say who his assailants were.

Lawson, 35, has flown in and out of ravaged villages surrounded by mutinous troops for the past week. He has been unarmed and, much of the time, alone. The U.N. headquarters said the Briton—attached to a Nigerian U.N. unit—volunteered for the assignment, a preliminary to large-scale U.N. military measures to restore order to the Lulaba River basin.

Nothing was said in his brief report about the Kivu Province town of Kindu, where about 80 white residents were reported by the United Nations to be in danger from soldiers and roaming terrorists.

Space Flight Checks Start All Over Again

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (AP) — It started all over again Sunday—the checking and rechecking of the rocket engines, the passenger accommodations, the weather and waves around the world—as the United States doggedly recalendarized its attempt to send a man in orbit around the earth.

Despite time off for church services, even astronaut John H. Glenn Jr. had a busy day, as Project Mercury operations director Walter C. Williams ordered the far-flung Mercury system to gear up for another try as early as Thursday.

Glenn attended an hour-long evaluation session at 9 a.m. After church he returned to the astronauts' quarters, donned his space suit at 2:30 p.m. and underwent an hour-long simulated space flight at 4 p.m. His backup pilot, Navy Lt. Cmdr. Scott M. Carpenter followed Glenn in the space trainer for an hour-long dress rehearsal of his own.

Meanwhile, engineers and technicians went through a six-hour practice of the launch-day countdown.

Showing up for Presbyterian church services, the Marine Corps lieutenant colonel gave no outward sign of having spent more than five disappointing hours curled up on his space couch Saturday, when heavy clouds moved in to mess up his date with the stars.

For Glenn, the new delay meant a return, probably Monday, to more simulated flights, more physical and coordination checks, and later in the week, more low-residue diet meals.

For technicians of the National Aeronautics and Space Administration, it meant dumping the liquid oxygen out of the Atlas, drying out the fuel tanks, and refurnishing the capsule's environmental control system, which protects the astronaut from heat and the vacuum of space, and provides him with air to breathe.

NASA officials are still hoping to have another go at it on Thursday or Friday, weather and a couple of thousand other things permitting.

Iran Fires Riot Protest To Russ

TEHRAN, Iran (AP)—Premier Ali Amini accused Soviet Embassy officials Sunday of having a hand in last week's student riots at Tehran University and said a protest had been sent to Moscow.

Security officers saw a few Soviet Embassy officials at the university last Sunday when students denounced the government and clashed with soldiers and police, Amini told a news conference.

Radio Moscow and other Communist-bloc broadcasts have been urging the students to rise up against the government, he declared.

Previously, the government had blamed Communists and feudal landlords opposed to Amini's land distribution program for the demonstration, the most violent in recent years.

The student demonstrators had shouted for ex-Premier Mohammed Mossadegh, the leftist premier who nationalized Iran's oil industry and tried to overthrow the shah. Now confined to his native village, he has been made a rallying point of the political opposition.

Cuba Executes Three Accused Saboteurs

HAVANA (UPI) — Three men accused of sabotaging urban transport service with incendiary bombs supplied by the American "intelligence service" were executed by a firing squad Saturday night, it was announced Sunday.

The counter-revolutionaries were executed after an appeals court rejected their pleas for mercy, the announcement said. They were identified as Rolando Rocha Mendez, Rene Lopez Mendez and Manuel Lopez Dominguez.

JFK, Nik May Tape TV Show

PALM BEACH, Fla. (AP) — White House press secretary Pierre Salinger, now in Paris, is expected to talk over with Russian press chief Mikhail Khramov ways of getting across U.S. views in the Soviet Union.

That was the word here Sunday from Salinger's White House press assistant, Andrew Hatcher.

But Hatcher said he did not know whether the idea of a possible exchange of television interviews between President Kennedy and Russian Premier Khrushchev might also be a topic of conversation.

NBC White House correspondent Sander Vanocur in a noon broadcast from Washington said it would be. He said details of plans for President Kennedy to appear on Soviet television and Khrushchev on American TV would be worked out late Sunday or early Monday in Paris.

Hatcher said, in response to a question, that he knew Khramov was in Paris this weekend and he expected Salinger to see him.

But he emphasized that this meeting was just incidental and not the reason for the weekend trip to Paris by Kennedy's press secretary.

Before Salinger left here for Paris on Saturday, it was announced he went to meet with Edward R. Murrow, head of the U.S. Information Agency and embassy press officers from Allied capitals.

They were scheduled to confer Monday morning and Salinger is due back in Washington Tuesday in time for a White House luncheon at which Soviet editor and Mrs. Alexei Adzhubei will be guests of President and Mrs. Kennedy.

Congo Premier Protests Soviet U.N. Council Call

LAGOS, Nigeria (AP) — Premier Cyrille Adoula of the Congo strongly protested Sunday the Soviet call for a U.N. Security Council meeting on the Congo, saying, "It can only bring further confusion."

Adoula asserted five of the Congo's provinces now are under central government control and he believes President Moise Tshombe of the sixth province—secessionist Katanga—is trying to work out a satisfactory solution.

Here for the Lagos meeting of chiefs of African governments, Adoula said he had made his views known in a cable to U.N. Acting Secretary-General U. Thant. He also announced he is going to the United Nations in New York this week "to explain the situation."

In calling for the meeting of the Security Council Tuesday, the Soviet Union charged the United Nations in the Congo was lagging in efforts to get rid of white mercenaries in Katanga. Adoula declared at a news conference Tshombe has made arrangements with the United Nations to dismiss the remaining mercenaries.

The premier said he believes Tshombe is evidently trying to adhere to the eight-point agreement he signed at Kitona in December. Under this agreement, Tshombe recognized authority of the central government and agreed to get rid of hired foreign soldiers.

Adoula's reference to control of five Congolese provinces apparently was to the collapse of leftist Antoine Gizenga in Oriental Province.

Farm Failures To Bring New Soviet Party Meeting

MOSCOW (AP)—Premier Khrushchev will summarize the state of Soviet agriculture after another year of failures at a special meeting of the Communist party Central Committee March 5.

This was disclosed Sunday in the party press, which said the meeting will make a complete review of agricultural difficulties that have left shelves bare of good meat and short on other food. A call for the special meeting was issued Saturday.

There is nothing in the Soviet Union remotely resembling famine such as has plagued Red China for the past three years. But agriculture has become a major stumbling block in efforts to bring Soviet living standards up to Western European and U.S. levels. And the continued sluggishness of agriculture threatens to defeat Khrushchev's efforts to lead the Communist bloc to world domination.

Vote Slated On Six-Point Declaration

Individual Nations Will Decide Which Steps They'll Take

PUNTA DEL ESTE, Uruguay (AP)—Hemisphere foreign ministers agreed Sunday night to draft a six-point declaration blasting Prime Minister Fidel Castro's Communist regime and creating machinery for economic sanctions against Cuba.

Although the declaration falls short of Washington's goals, U.S. sources predicted it would be solidly backed by a substantial majority of the 20 American republics and achieve "eminently effective" results.

The agreement broke a week-long deadlock on what action to take against Castro and cleared the way for adjournment of the conference Tuesday night.

Informants said delegations will be permitted to vote for or against each part of the final resolution. Near unanimous support is expected for all but the strongest sections.

Voluntary Measures

The key point centers on the introduction of voluntary measures to be taken by individual countries — rather than mandatory steps — under the charter of the Organization of American States.

This leaves the door open for members of the go-easy, seven-nation bloc, led by Brazil and Mexico, to sidestep the harsher aspects of the declaration. The voluntary measure also would relieve them of taking steps that might be unpopular back home.

But a U.S. delegation source expressed confidence that at least 17 nations would vote for the even more drastic steps embodied in the declaration. He said all 20 will back a statement branding the Castro regime incompatible with the inter-American system.

A unanimous vote also is expected for a general statement citing the inconsistency and dangers of communism in the Western Hemisphere.

The U.S. source said the toughest tactic to sell to the holdouts has been the expulsion or suspension of the Cuban regime from all agencies of the OAS.

Ouster Question Undecided

Representatives of the go-easy bloc and the hard-line group led by the United States still are negotiating the key point—whether to oust the Castro regime immediately or to turn the question over to a legal study committee.

All 20 members are agreed on the immediate banning of Cuba from the Inter-American Defense Board. But this merely makes formal a blackballing of the Castro regime that has been in effect since April 1961.

Foreign Minister Francisco Sanguinetti Dantas of Brazil, which along with Mexico has been leading the soft bloc, told reporters: "I think something good is going to come from this meeting. It will not be a negative one."

Dantas said an accord already has been reached in principle on the incompatibility of the Castro regime with the inter-American system and on the creation of an OAS security commission as a consultative organ.

White House Staffer To Accompany Jackie

PALM BEACH, Fla. (AP)—A member of the White House press staff will accompany Mrs. John F. Kennedy when the First Lady goes to India and Pakistan for what is now viewed as a "semi-official" visit.

Assistant White House press secretary Andrew Hatcher said Sunday it is possible President Kennedy's press secretary, Pierre Salinger, will go along on the March trip.

America's Far Right:

Composite Profile Of "Double Patriot"

EDITOR'S NOTE—America's Far Right contains many groups and shades of opinion—and many individuals. But in their view of enemy No. 1 they coincide, and a composite portrait emerges. This is the first of six articles on the movement by a Pulitzer Prize-winning reporter.

By RELMAN MORIN
AP Special Correspondent

He sees a monstrous conspiracy at work in every cranny of the United States.

Its purpose, he says, is to deliver the American people into the hands of the Communists, and he warns, "It is later than you think."

He accuses eminent Americans, including two former presidents and Chief Justice Earl Warren, of degrees of complicity. And the Kennedy administration, as well, is "very weak and soft in dealing with the Communist threat," he says.

To him, this plot is the touchstone that complicates the complicated. It gives him one simple, easily grasped explanation for all the intricate problems of today and the immediate past—Berlin, Cuba, Katanga, Laos, Korea, Viet Nam, China, and even the events that led to Pearl Harbor.

"The real government of our country," he says, is the Council on Foreign Relations and he calls it "the invisible government."

Most Americans are unaware of the situation, he says, having been blinded by Communist infiltration of the federal government, the churches, schools, and armed forces. Press, radio and television—these say this, looking a reporter straight in the eye—have deliberately misinformed the people or failed to print "the facts."

As immediate corrective measures, he calls for withdrawal from the United Nations, an end to foreign aid, a sharp break with the Soviet Union, the impeachment of Earl Warren, and deep surgery in the State Department and other branches of the federal government.

In some regions and in varying degrees, he also sees danger to the nation from desegregation, labor unions, the income tax, welfare programs, foreign alliances and water fluoridation.

Who is this man?

The above points form a composite profile of the ultraconservative, the member of the Hard Right, the "double patriot."

The profile does not apply, in all respects, to every rightist. There are many groups and many different shades of opinion among them. They don't all call for the same things. Even within a given organization, the John Birch Society, for example, there are Birchers who do not endorse everything propounded by the society's founder, Robert Welch of Massachusetts.

But it does point the general direction of what appears to be a rising river of opinion in the United States today.

How big is the movement?

Nobody can say precisely. One survey indicates that as many as 2,000 organizations may be functioning. Their total membership, however, is impossible to calculate accurately. The John Birch Society and the Minutemen do not disclose their enrollment. Some individuals belong to more than one group, overlapping. Some drop out shortly after joining. Some join but are inactive members.

The total could be millions, or only some hundreds of thousands.

Some groups that have attracted the greatest attention are the Birchers, the Christian Anti-Communist Crusade, the National Indignation Council, the Christian Council, and the Minutemen—or Minute Men as some groups delineate it, a loosely knit collection of bands who maneuver in the field with actual firearms and presumably are training for guerrilla warfare in case of invasion, or in case American Communists take over the country.

Such names as Freedom Center, Freedom Fighters, Christian Resistance, Project Alert, the Committee Against Nihilism, the National Anti-Communist League, American Security Council, and hundreds of others suggest the general area of the philosophy.

What type of person joins them?

Stanley Mosk, attorney general of California, wrote in a report on the John Birch Society: "The cadre . . . seems to be formed primarily of wealthy businessmen, retired military officers, and little old ladies in tennis shoes."

If it is accurate that that group in that state, it hardly describes the rightist movement as a whole.

Rightist thinking has permeated many segments of American society. This reporter discussed the doctrines with housewives and corporation executives, college presidents and college students, professional men and factory workers, persons of widely varying educational and social backgrounds.

In a modest home in a suburb of Los Angeles, a housewife said, "I just love my country, that's all. I joined in order to be able to do something. Is there anything wrong with that?"

In New York City, an executive's wife said she had signed a petition to impeach Warren. "A friend showed me the record of the Supreme Court decisions affecting the Communists," she said. "I hadn't known about them."

Yes, she said, she holds Warren personally responsible.

Severe criticism has been leveled at the rightists by President Kennedy and former Presidents Dwight D. Eisenhower and Harry S. Truman, and many newspapers and magazines. The groups fire back in publications of their own.

And the Oneonta, N.Y., Star probably spoke for the great majority of Americans when it said: "There is a question in many open minds today whether the greatest danger to our United States is from the Reds of communism or from the Blues on the right. Each seems to believe it is right and it is the rest of us who are crazy."

Two Persons

Die In Maryland

Auto Mishaps

By The Associated Press

Two persons were killed and two others were seriously injured in auto accidents on Maryland highways Saturday night and Sunday.

The state's traffic death toll stood at 22 for the year, compared to 24 a year ago.

One of the victims was Harry Oscar Hartzell Jr., 18, of Baltimore, a former star football player at Baltimore's Loyola High School.

Baltimore County police said he was driving south on York Road near Cockeysville when he failed to negotiate a curve and the car ran off the highway. He was dead of multiple injuries on arrival at Union Memorial Hospital in Baltimore shortly after midnight.

Hartzell, graduated from Loyola last June, was an All-Maryland quarterback in 1960. That year he led Loyola to its first undefeated, untied football season in 33 years.

Vincent James, 17, of Upperco, Baltimore County, was killed Sunday when his car ran off the Hanover Pike and struck a tree. He was pronounced dead at the scene about 4 a. m.

In Cecil County, three miles west of Earlville, 15-year-old Cora Ann Reed of Earlville was seriously injured when she walked across Maryland 282 into the path of a car shortly before midnight. She suffered a broken right leg, fractured pelvis, fracture of the upper and lower right arm, shock and internal injuries. Union Hospital in Elkton said her condition was critical.

Trooper First Class C. F. Howes identified the driver of the car as Noland Griffin Wooleyhan, 56, of Earlville. Howes said Wooleyhan was driving east when the girl crossed the highway toward a private driveway on the south side.

In critical condition in Kent-Queen Annes Hospital at Chestertown was George Edward Alexander, 19, of Millington, Kent County. He suffered head injuries, a fractured thigh, fractures of both hands, a broken pelvis and possible fracture of the spine in an accident early Sunday on Maryland 313, two miles north of Sudlersville in Queen Annes County.

Texans Elect

Demo To House

WICHITA FALLS, Tex. (AP) — Another Democrat stepped into President Kennedy's corner Sunday with the election of tall, trim Graham B. Purcell Jr., to the U.S. House.

Kennedy will gain still another supporter in Congress Tuesday when Texas' 4th Congressional District holds a special runoff election for a successor to the late Sam Rayburn. Both candidates in that race pledge support of the administration.

The House division after Tuesday will be 260 Democrats and 174 Republicans with three vacancies.

Purcell, 42, a state district judge, overwhelmed a Republican businessman, Joe Meissner, 36, in Saturday's 13th Congressional District special election for a successor to Frank Ikard, a Democrat, who resigned.

The 4th District race is between State Sen. Ray Roberts and Sherman attorney R. C. Slagle Jr., both close associates of Rayburn.

Why Can't You Remember

A noted publisher in Chicago reports there is a simple technique for acquiring a powerful memory which can pay you real dividends in both business and social advancement and works like magic to give you added poise, necessary self-confidence and greater popularity.

According to this publisher, many people do not realize how much they could influence others simply by remembering accurately everything they see, hear, or read. Whether in business, at social functions or even in casual conversations with new acquaintances, there are ways in which you can dominate each situation by your ability to remember.

To acquaint the readers of this paper with the easy-to-follow rules for developing skill in remembering anything you choose to remember, the publishers have printed full details of their self-training methods in a new book, "Adventures in Memory," which will be mailed free to anyone who requests it. No obligation. Simply send your request to: Memory Studies, 835 Diversey Parkway, Dept. 4921, Chicago 14, Ill. A postcard will do.

37 Arrested In Dance Melee

BALTIMORE (AP)—It was just a neighborhood dance. Well, not quite.

Thirty-seven persons were arrested and charged with disorderly conduct when a dance, over-subscribed because of counterfeit tickets, broke up at the Coliseum early Sunday.

Lt. Paul Aires testified in North-western Municipal Court that about 2,200 were inside the building which normally accommodates 2,000, and another 2,000 were outside trying to gain admittance.

"The situation was extremely touchy," Aires said. "And, with the crowd outside milling around and getting restless, it could have gotten completely out of hand."

A "general assist call" was issued to all police radio cars when the two crowds began to intermingle about 2 a.m. Dogs in the Police K-9 Corps were ordered to the scene.

Judge Aaron A. Baer imposed fines ranging from $10 to $25 each on the 37 disorderly conduct charges, and one defendant was fined an additional $50 on a charge of resisting arrest.

Reception For Tawes

BETHESDA, Md. (AP)—About 1,000 people attended a reception given Sunday for Gov. Tawes and his wife.

The reception was held under the auspices of a newly formed committee in Montgomery County, "Democrats For Tawes," headed by James P. Casbarian of Silver Spring, president of the Maryland State Bankers' Association.

Alvey's Trial Opens Today

BALTIMORE (AP) — A jury which will have the authority to recommend the death penalty will be picked Monday for the trial of Joseph H. Alvey, 41, accused of the kidnapping and death of a 7-year-old Washington boy.

The boy, Michael Condeti, disappeared in November of 1960 after leaving home to buy a bag for his school books. His body was found Nov. 14 in a woods in suburban Maryland.

Alvey, whom authorities said had been living in Mount Rainier, Md., at the time, was arrested last October in Miami, Fla., on a vagrancy charge.

Alvey was indicted in Baltimore under the Lindbergh kidnap law which provides a jury convicting the defendant may recommend specifically for or against the death penalty.

D'Alesandro Heads Tawes Committee

BALTIMORE (AP)—Gov. Tawes named Thomas D'Alesandro Jr., Sunday to head another committee to promote his candidacy for reelection.

D'Alesandro will head an advisory committee. Herbert R. O'Connor Jr. is chairman of the campaign and James J. Lacy Jr., is leading a citizens committee.

D'Alesandro was the only member of the statewide Tawes ticket to lose in 1958 when he failed to out Republican J. Glenn Beall as U. S. senator.

Five Integrationists Go On Jail Cell Fast

By The Associated Press

Five integrationists, arrested during racial demonstrations on Maryland's Eastern Shore, went on a hunger strike Sunday in their jail cells at Easton.

Sheriff Pat Granger said the white couple and three Negroes, held in jail when they were offered bond but refused it, did not eat breakfast, lunch or dinner.

The only woman in the group, Mrs. Roberta Mae Speel, 18, of Baltimore, asked that her tray be left in the cell at lunch time but did not eat from it. The others are her husband, Rodney Speel, 21; Charles E. Cobb Jr., 19, a student at Howard University, and Earl Jimerson, 20, both of Washington, D. C., and James F. Baker, 25, also of Baltimore. Mr. and Mrs. Speel are white, the others are Negroes.

For 15 minutes Sunday morning, the five sang hymns and "God Bless America." Sheriff Granger said the singing was not objectionable or too loud, and no one said anything to the integrationists about it. Otherwise, he said, they had been quiet.

The five, scheduled to get preliminary hearings at 2 p. m. Monday on trespass charges, were among 22 persons arrested Saturday during demonstrations in the Eastern Shore towns of Cambridge (pop. 12,200), Easton (pop. 6,300) and Centerville (pop. 1,800).

Two white integrationists were knocked down in an outbreak of violence in Cambridge. The demonstrations were protesting segregation at eating facilities in the three towns.

Gifford Pinchot III, 19, of Baltimore, grandson of a former Pennsylvania governor, was punched in the stomach, William W. Hansen, 22, of Cincinnati, Ohio, field director of the Student Nonviolent Coordinating Committee, was hit under the jaw as he picked in front of a restaurant.

Rufus Ruark, 35, of Cambridge, stepped from a crowd and clipped Hansen on the chin. State Police arrested Hansen on charges of disorderly conduct and charged Ruark with assault and battery. Both were released on bond. Pinchot's assailant evaded police.

The day-long demonstrations by more than 100 persons were climaxed with a rally at the Waugh Methodist Church in Cambridge, where one group appealed to President Kennedy to provide protection for the city's Negro population.

The telegram, also sent to Atty. Gen. Robert Kennedy and Maryland Gov. J. Millard Tawes, was drafted by Adele Potash of Baltimore, a member of the Congress of Racial Equality. It was approved by the Cambridge Nonviolent Action Committee and was signed "local citizens of Cambridge."

The five integrationists in the Easton jail who refused to post bond also were offered immediate trials last night by State's Attorney Henry P. Turner, but turned them down.

They were arrested at an Easton drugstore with two other demonstrators who did post $100 bond each and were released.

Texans Elect Demo To House

WICHITA FALLS, Tex. (AP) — Another Democrat stepped into President Kennedy's corner Sunday with the election of tall, trim Graham B. Purcell Jr., to the U.S. House.

Kennedy will gain still another supporter in Congress Tuesday when Texas' 4th Congressional District holds a special runoff election for a successor to the late Sam Rayburn. Both candidates in that race pledge support of the administration.

The House division after Tuesday will be 260 Democrats and 174 Republicans with three vacancies.

Purcell, 42, a state district judge, overwhelmed a Republican businessman, Joe Meissner, 36, in Saturday's 13th Congressional District special election for a successor to Frank Ikard, a Democrat, who resigned.

The 4th District race is between State Sen. Ray Roberts and Sherman attorney R. C. Slagle Jr., both close associates of Rayburn.

Why Can't You Remember

A noted publisher in Chicago reports there is a simple technique for acquiring a powerful memory which can pay you real dividends in both business and social advancement and works like magic to give you added poise, necessary self-confidence and greater popularity.

According to this publisher, many people do not realize how much they could influence others simply by remembering accurately everything they see, hear, or read. Whether in business, at social functions or even in casual conversations with new acquaintances, there are ways in which you can dominate each situation by your ability to remember.

To acquaint the readers of this paper with the easy-to-follow rules for developing skill in remembering anything you choose to remember, the publishers have printed full details of their self-training methods in a new book, "Adventures in Memory," which will be mailed free to anyone who requests it. No obligation. Simply send your request to: Memory Studies, 835 Diversey Parkway, Dept. 4921, Chicago 14, Ill. A postcard will do.

37 Arrested In Dance Melee

BALTIMORE (AP)—It was just a neighborhood dance. Well, not quite.

Thirty-seven persons were arrested and charged with disorderly conduct when a dance, over-subscribed because of counterfeit tickets, broke up at the Coliseum early Sunday.

Lt. Paul Aires testified in Northwestern Municipal Court that about 2,200 were inside the building which normally accommodates 2,000, and another 2,000 were outside trying to gain admittance.

"The situation was extremely touchy," Aires said. "And, with the crowd outside milling around and getting restless, it could have gotten completely out of hand."

A "general assist call" was issued to all police radio cars when the two crowds began to intermingle about 2 a. m. Dogs in the Police K-9 Corps were ordered to the scene.

Judge Aaron A. Baer imposed fines ranging from $10 to $25 each on the 37 disorderly conduct charges, and one defendant was fined an additional $50 on a charge of resisting arrest.

Reception For Tawes

BETHESDA, Md. (AP)—About 1,000 people attended a reception given Sunday for Gov. Tawes and his wife.

The reception was held under the auspices of a newly formed committee in Montgomery County, "Democrats For Tawes," headed by James P. Casbarian of Silver Spring, president of the Maryland State Bankers' Association.

Alvey's Trial Opens Today

BALTIMORE (AP) — A jury which will have the authority to recommend the death penalty will be picked Monday for the trial of Joseph H. Alvey, 41, accused of the kidnapping and death of a 7-year-old Washington boy.

The boy, Michael Condetti, disappeared in November of 1960 after leaving home to buy a bag for his school books. His body was found Nov. 14 in a woods in suburban Maryland.

Alvey, whom authorities said had been living in Mount Rainier, Md., at the time, was arrested last October in Miami, Fla., on a vagrancy charge.

Alvey was indicted in Baltimore under the Lindbergh kidnap law which provides a jury convicting the defendant may recommend specifically for or against the death penalty.

D'Alesandro Heads Tawes Committee

BALTIMORE (AP)—Gov. Tawes named Thomas D'Alesandro Jr., Sunday to head another committee to promote his candidacy for reelection.

D'Alesandro will head an advisory committee. Herbert R. O'Connor Jr. is chairman of the campaign and James J. Lacy Jr., is leading a citizens committee.

D'Alesandro was the only member of the statewide Tawes ticket to lose in 1958 when he failed to oust Republican J. Glenn Beall as U. S. senator.

Ann Landers . . .

Answers Your Problems

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I sympathize with the woman who denied she was pregnant and then had a baby a few weeks later. I was glad you gave her the benefit of the doubt because the same thing happened to me.

I was 44 years old and certain my child-bearing days were over. When I began to feel peculiar and gained weight I went to the doctor. He told me I ought to have my gall bladder out. I went to another doctor for confirmation and he said I didn't have gall bladder trouble at all. According to his diagnosis I had a water tumor which should be removed at once.

Then my husband finally said, "You look plain pregnant to me, kid." I told him he was out of his mind and that it wasn't possible.

The next day he almost dragged me to an O.B. specialist. The O.B. confirmed my husband's suspicion. Five weeks later I gave birth to a seven pound boy. And now we are parents of the cutest "water tumor" in town.—HAPPY NOW

DEAR ANN: Our 12-year-old daughter lives a long distance from school. Her father drives her every morning since the school is on his way to work.

Doris has a girl friend who is loud and boisterous. She comes over every morning, plops her head on his living room and waits for a ride.

Mornings at our house are hectic. It's annoying to have a stranger in the house listening to the morning conversation and watching our every move.

Occasionally she's late and my husband has to wait for her because if she missed her ride she'd be tardy. What can we do?—XLO

DEAR XLO: Doris should tell her friend it would be best if she waited outside.

She should explain, too, that her Dad is a business man and that he can't wait for her when she's late.

People who have no taste or judgement (adolescents and adults alike) should be straightened around. Sometimes they learn from it.

DEAR ANN: My husband and I have been married for five years. We have two children and one on the way.

Bill has been on the night shift for ten years and it's getting me down. He leaves the house at 3:30 p. m. and gets back at 12:30 a. m. I'm alone a great deal and I hate it.

I've begged him to quit and get a day-time job even if it means less money. He refuses, saying he'd be a fool to sacrifice his seniority.

We have a very nice home, good furniture and a 1961 car, but I'm miserable. How can I get him to listen to reason?—BLUE LOU

DEAR LOU: It's YOU who should listen to reason. Your husband isn't out chasing dames. He's working to support his family.

Bill was a veteran on the night shift when you married him. It's not as if he sprang it on you as a surprise.

A woman with two small children and one on the way should have plenty of work to do to occupy her time. Quit griping and learn to adjust, or you may find yourself alone a great deal more in the future. No man wants to come home to a nagging, complaining wife.

Are you tempted to smoke because the crowd does? If so, send for ANN LANDER'S booklet, "Teen-age Smoking," enclosing with your request ten cents in coin and a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope.

Conference Set On City Projects

A member of the Robert T. Register consulting engineering firm of Baltimore will meet with the Mayor and Council today at 9 a. m. to discuss the need for two related projects at the Lake Gordon filtration plant, according to Mayor J. Edwin Keech.

City officials last Monday tabled an order which called for advertising of a low-lift pumping station at Lake Gordon and the rehabilitation of the gate chamber at the lake.

Mayor Keech said he was advised that Mr. Register or W. E. Bartles, a member of his staff, will be here to brief city officials on the projects.

Cub Pack 20 Has Inspection

Awards were presented at the meeting of Cub Pack 20 Friday night at Mt. Royal School, when 38 of the 40 cubs attended. Pack inspection was by Walter Frederick, neighborhood commissioner.

A film based on the purpose of cub scouting was shown by Herbert Lehr, assistant district commissioner.

The following awards were made: David Walker received the Denner stripe; Mark Moderacki, assistant denner stripe; Kim Cosgrove, one-year pin; Kim Conway, wolf badge; Paul Gilbert, bear badge and gold arrow point; James Spies, bear badge and gold arrow point; Richard Bowser, two silver arrow points, two gold arrow points, a denner stripe and one-year pin; and Michael Granet, gold arrow point.

Den 6 presented a skit, "King John and Robin Hood," and Den 7 presented "The Knight and the Herb."

Den 5 won the attendance award.

Joseph E. Kenney

Mr. Kenney began working in the Frostburg office September 1945 as a mail carrier soon after being honorably discharged from service. He has worked as stamp clerk, dispatch clerk, and more recently has been in the finance section as clerk-in-charge.

He served in the Army with the 117th Infantry Regiment, 30th Division as a machine gunner, and was severely wounded in the breakthrough at St. Lo. He spent almost a year in an Army hospital in England.

A lifelong Democrat, he is a brother of James P. Kenney Jr., presently serving his second term on the Frostburg City Council. His father, the late James P. Kenney Sr., was elected to the Democratic State Central Committee for Allegany County and served as a committeeman for many years, and served several terms as trial magistrate in Frostburg.

The new postmaster is an active member of Farrady Post 24, American Legion, Frostburg Lodge BPO Elks, is active on the building committee of St. Michael's PTA, and has long been interested in civic affairs.

He is married to the former Miss Alice Nugent, a native of Baltimore, and they are the parents of four children. Mrs. Kenney is president of the Frostburg Democratic Women's Club, and has been an active party worker for some time. The Democratic State Central Committee has asked Mr. Monroey to call for open competitive examinations for a permanent appointment at the Frostburg Post Office, Mr. Wilson said.

The southernmost part of the United States, Ka Lae on Hawaii Island, lies on a parallel with Mexico City.

VA Assistance Offered Eligible Students

Although most students enrolled under the War Orphans Education Assistance program pursue college studies, eligible children may also take training in business and vocational schools, according to Sam Weston, local contact representative for Veterans Administration.

Students who have completed their high school education but do not desire to attend college, and students who drop out of school when they pass the age of compulsory attendance, may enroll for business or vocational training approved by their vocational counselors, Mr. Weston said.

Prospective students are eligible for enrollment under the program if the death of their veteran-parent was attributed to an injury or disability incurred in wartime service or in some cases of extraordinary peacetime service. The other parent may still be alive.

Generally between the ages of 18 and 23, these students may receive as much as $110 a month for as many as 36 months of training when enrolled in full-time, approved courses, and smaller payments for less than full-time enrollment.

Individuals are advised on their course of training by educational or vocational counselors, Mr. Weston said. Guardians and prospective students in Maryland who may be eligible should apply to the Baltimore Regional Office at Fayette and Saint Paul Streets. Further information may be obtained from Mr. Weston, on Fridays from 8:30 a. m. until 5 p. m. at the local VA office, Post Office Building.

Homemakers Observe 18th. Anniversary

Review Projects; Entertained With Music Program

FROSTBURG — Frostburg Homemakers' Club celebrated their eighteenth anniversary at the January meeting with a dinner at Salem United Church of Christ. The invocation was given by Mrs. Adam Baer. Following dinner, the group was entertained with violin music by Professor Boylian, accompanied by Professor James Pierce, both of Frostburg State Teachers College faculty. Selections played were: "Rondina on a Theme by Beethoven," by Kreisler; "Cavatina," by Roff; "Spanish Dance," by Mozowski.

Mrs. LaVerne Kerr introduced the guest speakers, Miss Mary Wise, Allegany County home demonstration agent; Mrs. Evelyn Whitehouse, state assistant home demonstration agent; and Mrs. Irene McDonald, county hostess and historian of the Homemakers Chorus.

Mrs. Reford Aldridge led group singing and introduced guest soloist, Mrs. Russell Fink, wife of Rev. Russell E. Fink, pastor of St. Johns Lutheran Church, Cumberland. She was accompanied on the piano by Wayne Lenkey. Her selections were: "Knights of Babylon," by Thomson; "Through the Years," by Youmans; "Wouldn't It Be Lovely," from "My Fair Lady," by Lerner and Loewe; and "Lament to the Willows," one of her own compositions.

Mrs. Kerr then proceeded with the business session. The suggestions of the executive board were presented and adopted by the club. The next meeting will be February 27 at the Thomas G. Pullen School auditorium on Civil Defense. The Frostburg Club will be host to the Midlothian, Shaft, Eckhart, Ellerslie, Mt. Savage, and Barre'sville-Wellersburg clubs. Senate Faces Showdown On Pipeline Bill

CHARLESTON, W. Va. (UPI)—Members of the West Virginia State Senate face a showdown this week on the controversial coal pipeline question.

Bills pertaining to the pipeline were reported out with a favorable recommendation last Friday by the Senate Judiciary Committee. The measures will be on first reading Monday with a vote possible Tuesday or Wednesday.

The judiciary committee specifically voted out its own substitute for the various pipeline bills granting builders of such a facility the right of eminent domain. The committee's version specifies such right would be given only to common carriers.

However, opponents of the pipeline have already announced their opposition also to the committee's version of the bills. The opponents have been urging a year-long study of the matter before it is brought to the Legislature for vote.

Also at passage stage Monday in the Senate is the administration bill calling for extension of the consumer sales tax for another year. It is expected to be passed without any trouble, despite some opposition from members of both parties.

At passage stage in the House Monday will be a constitutional amendment guaranteeing each county at least one seat in the House of Delegates.

Is It Structural Unemployment?

The man who is out of a job isn't likely to get excited over the question of whether he is a victim of "structural unemployment." He is willing to let the economists worry over the theory. And the economists are doing just that.

According to one group, which includes a majority of the President's Labor-Management Committee, there is structural unemployment. Unemployment, they say, is spotty to a greater degree than in the past, with more pools of unemployment here and there while the greater part of the economy has no excessive amounts of it.

They hold that consumer spending and government spending will not solve the problem because little of the money will find its way to the geographical and commercial areas that need it most. This, they say, is why unemployment remains unduly high after a recession has passed.

They fear inflation from executive spending, and propose instead area redevelopment and retaining of workers laid off because they are no longer needed.

A second group, including majorities of the Council of Economic Advisers and of the Joint Economic Committee, cites facts and figures purporting to prove that there is no more structural unemployment than in the past. It does not agree that automation and structural changes in the economy warrant the sort of point-by-point approach suggested by the other group.

It fears little inflationary danger in spending as long as spending stimulates production.

When "experts" cannot agree, non-experts can hardly be expected to know all the answers. But is this a problem to be solved at the theorists' level?

Nearly everybody will agree that unemployment is an unwholesome economic symptom as well as a cause of acute anxiety among its victims.

These Days

By George E. Sokolsky

A Startling Defense

It is difficult to understand President Kennedy's defense of William Arthur Wieland at his press conference last Wednesday. It is more difficult to understand why the Eastland Committee does not make public the vast amount of unfavorable material it has in its possession on the subject of Wieland's activities. This Congressional Committee has held long hearings concerning Wieland and Castro in executive session. It is the duty and obligation of the committee to make its data available to Congress and the public. Had such data been disclosed, the controversy between the President and Mrs. McClendon at the Wednesday Press Conference could not have taken place.

The question that Mrs. McClendon raised is whether two security risks are actually employed by the State Department. The argument hinged over the term, "security risks." Public opinion has long decided that William Arthur Wieland is a security risk. The testimony of Ambassadors Arthur Gardner and Earl E. T. Smith clearly substantiates this.

On September 19, 1960, I wrote an article in which I asked: Who in the United States helped Castro take Cuba? On the following day, I continued the subject. This was not the earliest discussion of Wieland's role in Cuba in this column. Smith had appeared before the Eastland Committee and about this I wrote:

"Smith's testimony established the point beyond question that it was the United States through the State Department that brought Castro to power. Time after time, he was questioned with regard to that and always it was clear that Assistant Secretary of State Roy Rubottom and William A. Wieland, the deskman in charge of Cuba, preferred Castro."

"Regarding Castro, Ambassador Smith testified: 'Castro was a revolutionary and a terrorist.' 'From the time that he was a university student, he was a gun-toter. I was informed by a diplomat that he had killed one nun and two priests in Bogota during the uprising in 1948.'"

On December 21, 1960, I began telling the story of William Arthur Montenegro which was a pseudonym for Wieland. I wrote:

"William Arthur Montenegro under that name and under another name wrote for the 'Havana Post' from 1933 to 1937. That is a good place to start if anyone needs a tip. There are articles in that newspaper which were contributed by such a person."

"The State Department has a technique for covering up and for evading scandals. When a State Department official goes wrong or is caught with bloody hands, the trick is to send him to other parts of the world, far from news centers until those who are interested forget about him, get interested in something else, or die. Then the career official who went away may return to Washington."

There is no need to go further in this material. It has been available to the State Department since about 1959. Despite that, Wieland was promoted from a Foreign Officer 2 to a Foreign Officer 1. This promotion has been embarrassing to the State Department which is not accustomed to seeing Foreign Officers walking about the lobbies of the State Department doing nothing.

The plan then was to send Wieland to Zurich as a consular officer. This the President undoubtedly stopped because Wieland never went to Zurich. He has been appointed to a management re-organization team which was an improper appointment because this involved in effect an investigation of himself.

The Wieland situation is now out in the open. The Eastland Committee has all the data on Wieland and why it has not printed the hearings and made them public. I do not know. But there can be no doubt but that the evidence, if brought before a court, would be very embarrassing to all parties. At least three former Ambassadors would have to testify against Wieland or perjure themselves because they have already testified before the Congressional Committee.

It is unfortunate that the President permitted himself to lose his temper over this issue. Either the Wieland testimony before the Eastland Committee should be made public or the matter should be brought into a court. I was among the first to write about Wieland's activities in Cuba.

President Kennedy cannot bear the burden of all the mistakes made by all public officials during the past 30 years. It is too great a task for any man.

Labor, Management Should Be Treated Alike

By David Lawrence

WASHINGTON — President Kennedy is relying on the power of public opinion, rather than the restrictive powers of government itself, to bring about "statesmanship" in the field of labor-management relations. But somehow he fails to speak out forcefully against labor unions before they strike for unwarranted increases in wages, while he issues sharp warnings to management to forego price increases based on rising labor costs.

A good example of this omission is the case of the Electrical Construction Workers' Union in New York City which has just extorted an agreement for a 25-hour week at higher wage rates, with overtime pay for at least an additional five hours per week. This means the electricians now will get approximately the same pay for 30 hours as they previously were getting for 35 hours, plus higher overtime pay for the additional hours they expect to work in view of the shortage of union electricians in the area.

Labor-union circles hailed this agreement as a "historic breakthrough." And the New York Central Labor Council urged all affiliated unions to press for the shorter work week. At the same time, the Building Trades Employers Association was being told by construction cost analysts that, if all the industry's craftsmen in the city went the shorter week, the cost of commercial construction would go up by 10 per cent and of residential construction by 7 per cent.

President Kennedy knew all about the electrical workers' demands and their strike, which caused the shutdown of practically all construction in New York for a time. The Mayor of New York, a political ally of the President, was in the midst of it and took no action to denounce the labor union for its exorbitant demands. Public opinion apparently was not mobilized by the White House.

Yet, when the steel industry was reported last Autumn ready to increase its prices because of wage increases won by the steel union after a costly strike, the President sent letters to the principal steel companies and put on a publicity barrage that placed them before the country as un mindful of the public interest. Actually, they didn't increase prices and the reason, it is believed, had to do with competitive conditions. Next Summer, however, when another steel strike is threatened, the steel companies may have to go up in their prices if the unions succeed in demands for wage increases.

A belated step has just been taken by the President with respect to the Electrical Union's agreement for a 25-hour week. Although the strike ended Jan. 19 after a week of disruption of the construction industry in the largest city in the country, and although an agreement was signed almost a week ago, the White House said nothing before or immediately afterward. The issue was really untouched until editorial comment generally criticized the Administration for its obvious one-sidedness. Then came the following exchange at the President's press conference on Wednesday of this week:

"Q. Mr. Kennedy, in the face of your economic message urging both management and labor to moderate their policy regarding price and wage increases, would you tell us how you feel about the electricians union's contracts in New York which call for a 25-hour week?"

"A. I have stated before — I think at the steelworkers convention before I was elected — and I've stated since then, that I thought that the 40-hour week — in view of the many obligations that we had upon us both at home and abroad — represented the national goal at this time."

"In addition, I thought that labor-management contracts should be settled within the realm of productivity increases, so that there would be a beneficial effect on price stability. Now, this contract does not meet either one of those two standards, and therefore I regret it."

But where is the remedy? The contract now has been made. The construction companies have surrendered. The costs undoubtedly will be passed on to the public in higher rents. The right of a union to bargain for an entire industry in the largest city in the country has been acquiesced in. But if the employers in that same city were to agree to fix prices to absorb the added wage costs, they would be promptly prosecuted by the U. S. Attorney General.

When is the President going to put the labor unions on the same footing as management? If a wage formula that provides for uniform payments by employers affects the price, the labor unions escape any penalty.

The Administration answers that it is going to depend on public opinion. It has been known for several days that officials here were unhappy about what the Electrical Union was doing, but not a word of reproof came from the White House or the Department of Labor. No letters were written in advance to the heads of the Electrical Union to modify their demands. After it endeavor to persuade them to is all over, there is only an expression of "regret" — hidden away in a press conference transcript of many thousands of words.

Plainly, the irresponsibility of labor-union leaders in certain industries is growing into a serious threat to the economic welfare of the country. The President still is reported as being perplexed over why so many businessmen consider the Administration hostile to business. It is a cause for worry at a time when the closest cooperation is needed on all sides to deal with the economic problems that are international in their scope. The only remedy is to treat labor-union leaders and management alike.

Inside Washington

By Henry Cathcart

STONING — A group of six senators, who visited some Latin American countries, were flabbergasted to learn on their return that they had been "stoned" in Caracas, Venezuela.

Caracas was the scene of the much-publicized mob attack on then Vice President Richard M. Nixon. Apparently the throwing of rocks at U.S. officials is considered big news there.

But in the current case, the six senators had absolutely no awareness that they had been attacked until they read it in the newspapers.

Then, Sen. Mike Mansfield, Montana Democrat, recalled that as the party drove from the Caracas airport it passed a school where some small boys were playing. A couple of them, about age eight or nine, tossed some pebbles at the passing automobile, unaware of who the occupants were and certainly not motivated by any "Yankee-go-home" sentiments.

"The only shock we got," explained Mansfield, "was when we learned of the report of the 'stoning' that never occurred."

Some First Aid Tips For Cuts And Wounds

By Dr. Theodore R. Van Dellen

Several months ago I answered a question in the health column on what to do when you cut yourself. I replied that infection is discouraged by washing the lesion thoroughly with soap and water and applying a sterile bandage.

The day after this item appeared, the entire first aid class of Cantrick Junior High School of Monroe, Mich., wrote to protest my answer. These 14 year olds are on the ball; they pointed out that the Red Cross first aid book advises applying a dressing first and then a bandage.

But for the average cut or tiny wound, use an adhesive bandage consisting of a small bit of gauze on an adhesive tape backing, directly over the clean cut. Heavier bandages are needed to hold bulkier dressings in place, especially when covering larger lesions.

Many persons think a bandage should be removed daily. When the wound is cleaned well with soap and water, and covered with a few pads of gauze held in place with an elastic bandage, adhesive tape, or roller gauze, there's no need to change it unless it becomes wet or blood stained. Bacteria love dried blood and will eat their way through the stained area until they reach the wound. Infection usually is suspected when the injured area throbs or hurts.

There is a good reason why the bandage should not be changed too often. Every time an open wound is exposed, there is a chance of contamination, usually by the breath or the fingers. Do a professional job the first time and the cut or wound will heal quickly if left alone.

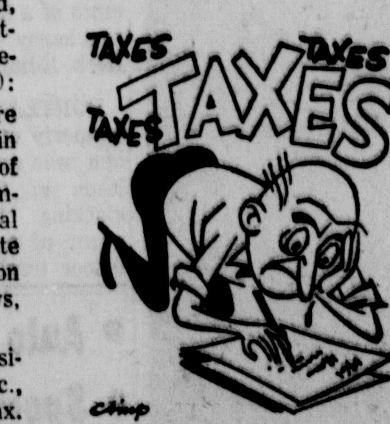

TOMORROW: Genetic aspects of ulcer.

DISTURBANCE OF VISION

M. D. K. writes: Three weeks ago a smoke screen and black dots settled over my left eye. An eye specialist found a spot had developed behind the eye for which there is no remedy. "Learn to live with it," he said. I feel handicapped. Is this the last word on the subject?

Central Intelligence Agency Head Ranks Next To President In Power

By Drew Pearson

WASHINGTON — Some people may wonder why I have been writing so much about John McCone, now up for Senate confirmation as head of Central Intelligence. They may wonder whether I have a personal grudge against McCone. The fact is I have nothing against Mr. McCone personally, don't believe I've even met him.

But the most important person molding U. S. foreign policy, next to the President, is probably the head of Central Intelligence. The public doesn't realize this, but it's true. More than even the Secretary of State, the head of CIA can depose kings or presidents, foment revolution, take us close to war. Furthermore, he doesn't have to report to Congress, or even to the General Accounting Office for the money he spends. He is the only government official with this exemption. His power results from two facts:

1. He can use money and agents to subvert and undermine a foreign government and nobody in Congress knows about it.
2. He reports to the President. And the man who reports the facts on a foreign situation to be a certain way has the power to make decisions.

Let's take some examples. These are not mythical examples, but concrete facts which can be proved.

The Cuban Fiasco — In April 1961, following the tragic failure

at the Bay of Pigs, Secretary of State Rusk informed a seminar of editors in Washington that "the intelligence from Cuba was inaccurate and very poor"; while Roger Hilsman Jr., chief of State Department Intelligence, informed a newsman, "our information on Cuba was quite different from CIA's but we were not consulted."

Business Finances CIA

In brief, CIA had informed President Kennedy that conditions inside Cuba were ripe for revolution, that the Cuban people would rise up to join the freedom fighters. Kennedy believed these facts to be accurate and made the wrong decision. Thus the power to report actually gave CIA the virtual power to make the decision.

Business Money Behind CIA—After the Bay of Pigs Fiasco, I reported that certain U. S. business firms, one of them a big oil company, had put up several hundred thousand dollars to finance the Cuban freedom fighters.

This meant that foreign policy was further divorced from the constitutional channels of government and financed by private corporations with a property stake in Cuba. This can be one of the best ways to drag 180,000,000 people into war for the benefit of a handful.

However, this is the way CIA operates. Corporation heads are given the privilege of looking through CIA files. Corporation officials abroad influence and cooperate with CIA agents.

CIA Chief McCone admits he owns $1,000,000 of Standard Oil of California stock and is not going to sell that stock. His shipping companies make several million dollars annually shipping ore and oil for various corporations. How can he possibly divorce his judgment from decisions that affect his companies is a question some Senators are asking.

The Senate has a right to inquire into this carefully, because on two previous occasions Mc-

Cone, as a public official, acted in favor of companies with which he had been associated—and it cost the taxpayers a lot of money. Operations In Spain — After Prof. Jesus De Galindez was kidnapped from New York in 1956, Allen Dulles phoned District Attorney Frank Hogan in New York asking that a CIA agent be permitted to look over the Galindez papers. It then became known that CIA had put up $1,016,000 for Galindez to operate a Basque network in Spain. The Basques hate Franco, so this network could only have worked against Franco who has given the United States military bases.

The State Department knew nothing about this.

Operations In Costa Rica—In 1953-54, President Figueres of Costa Rica discovered that a CIA agent was tapping his telephone. The agent was caught. Figueres was probably the most pro-American of the duly elected Central American Presidents, and the discovery of a phone tap didn't help our relations.

The State Department knew nothing about this CIA job. It was suspected that either General Somoza in Nicaragua, who hated Figueres, or U. S. business interests inspired CIA to tap the Figueres phone.

Operations In Iran—When Mosaddegh was in power in Iran, the CIA offered Mohamed Ossein Ghasseghai, a prominent Iranian leader, $4,000,000 in cash if he would lead a revolt. The money was to be deposited in a Swiss bank.

The offer was turned down, but later Allen Dulles flew to Rome and worked with the Shah's sister, Princess Ashraf, in starting a revolution which succeeded.

This is a cross-section of the amazing network of intelligence and espionage operations which will come under the man who heads CIA and who, because of his power, must be examined for conflicts of interest and other qualifications.

Jim Bishop: Reporter

By Jim Bishop

There is an old sorrow in Glenn Ford's eyes. I don't know what it is. Nor will I ask. We sat in the living room of my house on a cold day and, looking over a cup of black coffee, I could see it. We talked and sometimes we sat in silence listening to the logs in the fireplace picking their teeth. It was there, all the time.

He's a listener. He nods and smiles his one-sided smile. Sometimes he thinks slowly with his eyes on the ceiling. At others, he is faster than the story you're telling. Glenn Ford is a popular motion picture star. He owns cattle on several ranches in three western states. He's building a new house in Beverly Hills. He has a well-fed wallet.

He's alone. "You like living alone?" I said. He thought about it. "No," he said. Once he was married to Eleanor Powell. She's the lady of the legs who dances an inch off the floor. Once he was happy. Now they are divorced and they have a son, Peter, who will be 17 in a few weeks.

"You going to marry again?" I said. He faced me, absent-mindedly stirring coffee which had no cream or sugar. "Good coffee," he said. "Like Navy coffee." I waited for an answer. He knew it. "I think so," he said.

"What is she like?" I said. The boyish grin came up. "I don't know," he said. "I haven't met her yet." I don't believe him. I think he has. He's 43, too young to dial the late movie alone.

There is integrity in this man. You can feel it, like soil between fingers. He had his faults. There is booze in his past, and some women. When the dark mood is on him, Glenn Ford can lapse into the silence of the high cold mountains. He also has a snarl tucked under his lip. But he lives by a pretty good code, and he puts money away in the hopes that someday he will have his own ranch and be his own cowboy.

Recently, Eleanor Powell made a comeback. She was booked into big clubs in the west and the reviews were good. Glenn Ford is her number one fan. "She's greater than ever," he said.

So is he. He has just finished "The Four Horsemen" and, at a time when Hollywood is beating its breast at its own funeral, the new picture looks like a money-maker. Ford, ironically, didn't want to be an actor. "I had no looks," he said.

He was declined by every major studio in Hollywood. His ambition, after Santa Monica High School, was to be a stage manager.

Stage managers also play bit parts. Bit by bit, Glenn Ford worked his way out of the wings. He was doing pretty well when he enlisted in the U. S. Marines November 15, 1943. He didn't go to war to entertain. He was a buck private rear rank. When the war ended, Ford was a line sergeant in Hawaii. He's been a Navy man ever since and is now a Lieutenant-Commander USNR.

Bette Davis gave Glenn Ford his big break. She was going to star in a picture called "A Stolen Life." Miss Davis made Ford her leading man. Then Rita Hayworth wanted him for "Gilda." The rest is a matter of time.

"The Four Horsemen" is Glenn Ford's 77th motion picture.

"What was your biggest thrill?" I said. I got out from behind the bar and walked over to the fireplace to kick the logs. They were loafing. "My biggest thrill?" he said. "Yes," I said. He grinned. "Me and a guy climbed Mont Blanc." I looked at him.

"Took us three days," he said. "We started from Chamonix, France. That thing is 14,000 some odd feet high." I thought: Oh, he's one of those. He read it. "No," he said. "It was my first and last mountain. But it was a big thrill and when we got to the top we could see three countries: France, Switzerland and Italy."

We talked about the time when he was a stable boy for Will Rogers. Rogers kept polo ponies at the Uplifters Club in Santa Monica. Glenn Ford was paid to exercise and groom. He loves horses. That's why his westerns look dusty and authentic. "That kind of a picture is never a job to do," he said. "No strain."

He bought the land on which Louis B. Mayer used to have his mansion. It's a couple of blocks behind the Beverly Hills Hotel. Glenn Ford has a feel for field-stone and wood, and the house he is building will have plenty of both. "What will it be like?" I said.

"It will be finished May first," he said. "No," I said. "What will it be like?" He sipped the sludge from the bottom of the cup. "Fourteen rooms. Two guest rooms and a guest house. Big fireplace. Great big ones. Game room. Indoor barbecue. Steam room. A wine cellar. Great big fireplaces."

"You going to live alone in it?" I said. He nodded. "All those rooms?" I said. "All those rooms," he said. "Going to have a pool table. You like to shoot pool? Come on out."

I said sure. It's hell to be alone and have nothing. It's worse to be alone and have everything...

Is It Structural Unemployment?

The man who is out of a job isn't likely to get excited over the question of whether he is a victim of "structural unemployment." He is willing to let the economists worry over the theory. And the economists are doing just that.

According to one group, which includes a majority of the President's Labor-Management Committee, there is structural unemployment. Unemployment, they say, is spotty to a greater degree than in the past, with more pools of unemployment here and there while the greater part of the economy has no excessive amounts of it.

They hold that consumer spending and government spending will not solve the problem because little of the money will find its way to the geographical and commercial areas that need it most. This, they say, is why unemployment remains unduly high after a recession has passed.

They fear inflation from executive spending, and propose instead area redevelopment and retaining of workers laid off because they are no longer needed.

A second group, including majorities of the Council of Economic Advisers and of the Joint Economic Committee, cites facts and figures purporting to prove that there is no more structural unemployment than in the past. It does not agree that automation and structural changes in the economy warrant the sort of point-by-point approach suggested by the other group.

It fears little inflationary danger in spending as long as spending stimulates production.

When "experts" cannot agree, non-experts can hardly be expected to know all the answers. But is this a problem to be solved at the theorists' level?

Nearly everybody will agree that unemployment is an unwholesome economic symptom as well as a cause of acute anxiety among its victims.

These Days

A Startling Defense

It is difficult to understand President Kennedy's defense of William Arthur Wieland at his press conference last Wednesday. It is more difficult to understand why the Eastland Committee does not make public the vast amount of unfavorable material it has in its possession on the subject of Wieland's activities. This Congressional Committee has held long hearings concerning Wieland and Castro in executive session. It is the duty and obligation of the committee to make its data available to Congress and the public. Had such data been disclosed, the controversy between the President and Mrs. McClellan at the Wednesday Press Conference could not have taken place.

The question that Mrs. McClellan raised is whether two security risks are actually employed by the State Department. The argument hinged over the term, "security risks." Public opinion has long decided that William Arthur Wieland is a security risk. The testimony of Ambassadors Arthur Gardner and Earl E. T. Smith clearly substantiates this.

On September 19, 1960, I wrote an article in which I asked: Who in the United States helped Castro take Cuba? On the following day, I continued the subject. This was not the earliest discussion of Wieland's role in Cuba in this column. Smith had appeared before the Eastland Committee and about this I wrote:

"Smith's testimony established the point beyond question that it was the United States through the State Department that brought Castro to power. Time after time, he was questioned with regard to that and always it was clear that Assistant Secretary of State Roy Rubottom and William A. Wieland, the deskman in charge of Cuba, preferred Castro.

"Regarding Castro, Ambassador Smith testified: 'Castro was a revolutionary and a terrorist.

"From the time that he was a university student, he was a gunfitter. I was informed by a diplomat that he had killed one nun and two priests in Bogota during the uprising in 1948."

On December 21, 1960, I began telling the story of William Arthur Montenegro which was a pseudonym for Wieland. I wrote:

"William Arthur Montenegro under that name and under another name wrote for the 'Havana Post' from 1933 to 1937. That is a good place to start if anyone needs a tip. There are articles in that newspaper which were contributed by such a person.

"The State Department has a technique for covering up and for evading scandals. When a State Department official goes wrong or is caught with bloody hands, the trick is to send him to other parts of the world, far from news centers until those who are interested forget about him, get interested in something else, or die. Then the career official who went away may return to Washington."

There is no need to go further in this material. It has been available to the State Department since about 1959. Despite that, Wieland was promoted from a Foreign Officer 2 to a Foreign Officer 1. This promotion has been embarrassing to the State Department which is not accustomed to seeing Foreign Officers 1 walking about the lobbies of the State Department doing nothing.

The plan then was to send Wieland to Zurich as a consular officer. This the President undoubtedly stopped because Wieland never went to Zurich. He has been appointed to a management re-organization team which was an improper appointment because this involved in effect an investigation of himself.

The Wieland situation is now out in the open. The Eastland Committee has all the data on Wieland and why it has not printed the hearings and made them public, I do not know. But there can be no doubt but that the evidence, if brought before a court, would be very embarrassing to all parties. At least three former Ambassadors would have to testify against Wieland or perjure themselves because they have already testified before the Congressional Committee.

It is unfortunate that the President permitted himself to lose his temper over this issue. Either the Wieland testimony before the Eastland Committee should be made public or the matter should be brought into a court. I was among the first to write about Wieland's activities in Cuba.

President Kennedy cannot bear the burden of all the mistakes made by all public officials during the past 30 years. It is too great a task for any man.

Time For Reappraisal

Labor, Management Should Be Treated Alike

By David Lawrence

WASHINGTON — President Kennedy is relying on the power of public opinion, rather than the restrictive powers of government itself, to bring about "statesmanship" in the field of labor-management relations. But somehow he fails to speak out forcefully against labor unions before they strike for unwarranted increases in wages, while he issues sharp warnings to management to forego price increases based on rising labor costs.

A good example of this omission is the case of the Electrical Construction Workers' Union in New York City which has just extorted an agreement for a 25-hour week at higher wage rates, with overtime pay for at least an additional five hours per week. This means the electricians now will get approximately the same pay for 30 hours as they previously were getting for 35 hours, plus higher overtime pay for the additional hours they expect to work in view of the shortage of union electricians in the area.

Labor-union circles hailed this agreement as a "historic breakthrough," and the New York Central Labor Council urged all affiliated unions to press for the shorter work week. At the same time, the Building Trades Employers Association was being told by construction cost analysts that, if all the industry's craftsmen in the city won the shorter week, the cost of commercial construction would go up by 10 per cent and of residential construction by 7 per cent.

President Kennedy knew all about the electrical workers' demands and their strike, which caused the shutdown of practically all construction in New York for a time. The Mayor of New York, a political ally of the President, was in the midst of it and took no action to denounce the labor union for its exorbitant demands. Public opinion apparently was not mobilized by the White House.

Yet, when the steel industry was reported last Autumn ready to increase its prices because of wage increases won by the steel union after a costly strike, the President sent letters to the principal steel companies and put on a publicity barrage that placed them before the country as un mindful of the public interest. Actually, they didn't increase prices and the reason, it is believed, had to do with competitive conditions. Next Summer, however, when another steel strike is threatened, the steel companies may have to go up in their prices if the unions succeed in demands for wage increases.

A belated step has just been taken by the President with respect to the Electrical Union's agreement for a 25-hour week. Although the strike ended Jan. 19 after a week of disruption of the construction industry in the largest city in the country, and although an agreement was signed almost a week ago, the White House said nothing before or immediately afterward. The issue was really untouched until editorial comment generally criticized the Administration for its obvious onesidedness. Then came the following exchange at the President's press conference on Wednesday of this week:

"Q. Mr. Kennedy, in the face of your economic message urging both management and labor to moderate their policy regarding price and wage increases, would you tell us how you feel about the electricians union's contracts in New York which call for a 25-hour week?"

"A. I have stated before — I think at the steelworkers convention before I was elected — and I've stated since then, that I thought that the 40-hour week — in view of the many obligations that we had upon us both at home and abroad — represented the national goal at this time.

"In addition, I thought that labor-management contracts should be settled within the realm of productivity increases, so that there would be a beneficial effect on price stability. Now, this contract does not meet either one of those two standards, and therefore I regret it."

But where is the remedy? The contract now has been made. The construction companies have surrendered. The costs undoubtedly will be passed on to the public in higher rents. The right of a union to bargain for an entire industry in the largest city in the country has been acquiesced in. But if the employers in that same city were to agree to fix prices to absorb the added wage costs, they would be promptly prosecuted by the U. S. Attorney General.

When is the President going to put the labor unions on the same footing as management? If a wage formula that provides for uniform payments by employers affects the price, the labor unions escape any penalty.

The Administration answers that it is going to depend on public opinion. It has been known for several days that officials here were unhappy about what the Electrical Union was doing, but not a word of reproof came from the White House or the Department of Labor. No letters were written in advance to the heads of the Electrical Union to modify their demands. After it endeavor to persuade them to is all over, there is only an expression of "regret" — hidden away in a press conference transcript of many thousands of words.

Plainly, the irresponsibility of labor-union leaders in certain industries is growing into a serious threat to the economic welfare of the country. The President still is reported as being perplexed over why so many businessmen consider the Administration hostile to business. It is a cause for worry at a time when the closest cooperation is needed on all sides to deal with the economic problems that are international in their scope. The only remedy is to treat labor-union leaders and management alike.

Inside Washington

By Henry Cathcart

STONING — A group of six senators, who visited some Latin American countries, were flabbergasted to learn on their return that they had been "stoned" in Caracas, Venezuela.

Caracas was the scene of the much-publicized mob attack on then Vice President Richard M. Nixon. Apparently the throwing of rocks at U. S. officials is considered big news there.

But in the current case, the six senators had absolutely no awareness that they had been attacked until they read it in the newspapers.

Then, Sen. Mike Mansfield, Montana Democrat, recalled that as the party drove from the Caracas airport it passed a school where some small boys were playing. A couple of them, about age eight or nine, tossed some pebbles at the passing automobile, unaware of who the occupants were and certainly not motivated by any "Yankee-go-home" sentiments.

"The only shock we got," explained Mansfield, "was when we learned of the report of the 'stoning' that never occurred."

Some First Aid Tips For Cuts And Wounds

By Dr. Theodore R. Van Dellen

Several months ago I answered a question in the health column on what to do when you cut yourself. I replied that infection is discouraged by washing the lesion thoroughly with soap and water and applying a sterile bandage.

The day after this item appeared, the entire first aid class of Cantrick Junior High School of Monroe, Mich., wrote to protest my answer. These 14 year olds are on the ball; they pointed out that the Red Cross first aid book advises applying a dressing first and then a bandage.

In my reply, I used medical lingo instead of being more specific. Many physicians use the word "bandage" to include the dressing and the covering roller gauze or adhesive tape. In addition, I should have specified that my remarks referred to cuts. In larger wounds, a sterile gauze pad should be applied and then covered with adhesive tape or a roller gauze bandage.

But for the average cut or tiny wound, use an adhesive bandage consisting of a small bit of gauze on an adhesive tape backing, directly over the clean cut. Heavier bandages are needed to hold bulkier dressings in place, especially when covering larger lesions.

Many persons think a bandage should be removed daily. When the wound is cleaned well with soap and water, and covered with a few pads of gauze held in place with an elastic bandage, adhesive tape, or roller gauze, there's no need to change it unless it becomes wet or blood stained. Bacteria love dried blood and will eat their way through the stained area until they reach the wound. Infection usually is suspected when the injured area throbs or hurts.

There is a good reason why the bandage should not be changed too often. Every time an open wound is exposed, there is a chance of contamination, usually by the breath or the fingers. Do a professional job the first time and the cut or wound will heal quickly if left alone.

TOMORROW: Genetic aspects of ulcer.

Central Intelligence Agency Head Ranks Next To President In Power

By Drew Pearson

WASHINGTON — Some people may wonder why I have been writing so much about John McCone, now up for Senate confirmation as head of Central Intelligence. They may wonder whether I have a personal grudge against McCone. The fact is I have nothing against Mr. McCone personally, don't believe I've even met him.

But the most important person molding U. S. foreign policy, next to the President, is probably the head of Central Intelligence. The public doesn't realize this, but it's true. More than even the Secretary of State, the head of CIA can depose kings or presidents, foment revolution, take us close to war. Furthermore, he doesn't have to report to Congress, or even to the General Accounting Office for the money he spends. He is the only government official with this exemption.

His power results from two facts:

1. He can use money and agents to subvert and undermine a foreign government and nobody in Congress knows about it.

2. He reports to the President. And the man who reports the facts on a foreign situation to be a certain way has the power to make decisions.

Let's take some examples. These are not mythical examples, but concrete facts which can be proved.

The Cuban Fiasco — In April 1961, following the tragic failure

at the Bay of Pigs, Secretary of State Rusk informed a seminar of editors in Washington that "the intelligence from Cuba was inaccurate and very poor"; while Roger Hilsman Jr., chief of State Department Intelligence, informed a newsman, "our information on Cuba was quite different from CIA's but we were not consulted."

Business Finances CIA

In brief, CIA has informed President Kennedy that conditions inside Cuba were ripe for revolution, that the Cuban people would rise up to join the freedom fighters. Kennedy believed these facts to be accurate and made the wrong decision. Thus the power to report actually gave CIA the virtual power to make the decision.

Business Money Behind CIA—After the Bay of Pigs Fiasco, I reported that certain U. S. business firms, one of them a big oil company, had put up several hundred thousand dollars to finance the Cuban freedom fighters.

This meant that foreign policy was further divorced from the constitutional channels of government and financed by private corporations with a property stake in Cuba. This can be one of the best ways to drag 180,000,000 people into war for the benefit of a handful.

However, this is the way CIA operates. Corporation heads are given the privilege of looking through CIA files. Corporation officials abroad influence and cooperate with CIA agents.

CIA Chief McCone admits he owns $1,000,000 of Standard Oil of California stock and is not going to sell that stock. His shipping companies make several million dollars annually shipping ore and oil for various corporations. How can he possibly divorce his judgment from decisions that affect his companies is a question some Senators are asking.

The Senate has a right to inquire into this carefully, because on two previous occasions Mc-

Cone, as a public official, acted in favor of companies with which he had been associated—and it cost the taxpayers a lot of money.

Operations In Spain — After Prof. Jesus De Galindez was kidnapped from New York in 1956, Allen Dulles phoned District Attorney Frank Hogan in New York asking that a CIA agent be permitted to look over the Galindez papers. It then became known that CIA had put up $1,016,000 for Galindez to operate a Basque network in Spain. The Basques hate Franco, so this network could only have worked against Franco who has given the United States military bases.

The State Department knew nothing about this.

Operations In Costa Rica—In 1953-54, President Figueres of Costa Rica discovered that a CIA agent was tapping his telephone. The agent was caught. Figueres was probably the most pro-American of the duly elected Central American Presidents, and the discovery of a phone tap didn't help our relations.

The State Department knew nothing about this CIA job. It was suspected that either General Somoza in Nicaragua, who hated Figueres, or U. S. business interests inspired CIA to tap the Figueres phone.

Operations In Iran—When Mosaddegh was in power in Iran, the CIA offered Mohamed Osseini Ghasghai, a prominent Iranian leader, $4,000,000 in cash if he would lead a revolt. The money was to be deposited in a Swiss bank.

The offer was turned down, but later Allen Dulles flew to Rome and worked with the Shah's sister, Princess Ashraf, in starting a revolution which succeeded.

This is a cross-section of the amazing network of intelligence and espionage operations which will come under the man who heads CIA and who, because of his power, must be examined for conflicts of interest and other qualifications.

There is an old sorrow in Glenn Ford's eyes. I don't know what it is. Nor will I ask. We sat in the living room of my house on a cold day and, looking over a cup of black coffee, I could see it. We talked and sometimes we sat in silence listening to the logs in the fireplace picking their teeth. It was there, all the time.

He's a listener. He nods and smiles his one-sided smile. Sometimes he thinks slowly with his eyes on the ceiling. At others, he is faster than the story you're telling. Glenn Ford is a popular motion picture star. He owns cattle on several ranches in three western states. He's building a new house in Beverly Hills. He has a well-fed wallet.

He's alone. "You like living alone?" I said. He thought about it. "No," he said. Once he was married to Eleanor Powell. She's the lady of the legs who dances an inch off the floor. Once he was happy. Now they are divorced and they have a son, Peter, who will be 17 in a few weeks.

"You going to marry again?" I said. I sat behind the lavender bar. He faced me, absent-mindedly stirring coffee which had no cream or sugar. "Good coffee," he said. "Like Navy coffee." I waited for an answer. He knew it. "I think so," he said.

"What is she like?" I said. The boyish grin came up. "I don't know," he said. "I haven't met her yet." I don't believe him. I think he has. He's 43, too young to dial the late movie alone.

There is integrity in this man. You can feel it, like soil between fingers. He had his faults. There is booze in his past, and some women. When the dark mood is on him, Glenn Ford can lapse into the silence of the high cold mountains. He also has a snarl tucked under his lip. But he lives by a pretty good code, and he puts money away in the hopes that someday he will have his own ranch and be his own cowboy.

Recently, Eleanor Powell made a comeback. She was booked into big clubs in the west and the reviews were good. Glenn Ford is her number one fan. "She's greater than ever," he said.

So is he. He has just finished "The Four Horsemen," and, at a time when Hollywood is beating its breast at its own funeral, the new picture looks like a money-maker. Ford, ironically, didn't want to be an actor. "I had no looks," he said.

Bill McKechnie And Edd Roush Elected To Baseball Hall Of Fame

"Deacon" Led Four National Flag Winners

Piloted Bucs To 1925 Pennant; Roush Hit .325 In 18 Seasons

NEW YORK UPI — Edd Roush, former Cincinnati Reds' outfielder who won fame as a two-time National League batting champion, and William B. McKechnie, who managed three different NL clubs to pennants, were elected to the Hall of Fame Sunday by a special old timers selection committee.

The committee of 12 old-time experts, headed by sportswriter Warren Brown of Chicago, was unanimous in its selections. A three-quarters majority of the votes was required for election.

Roush Batted .325

Roush, a native of Oakland City, Ind., who compiled a .325 batting average in 18 big league seasons, and McKechnie, who skipped Pittsburgh, St. Louis and Cincinnati to pennants, will be formally installed in the baseball shrine at Cooperstown, N.Y., next July. They will be enshrined along with former Cleveland Indian strikeout king Bob Feller and ex-Brooklyn Dodger firebrand Jackie Robinson, who were voted into the Hall of Fame by the Baseball Writers Association of America on Jan. 23.

The old timers selection committee votes on players whose careers ended 30 or more years ago. Roush's big league career was between 1913 and 1931.

Won Batting Titles

Roush, played with the Reds for 12 of his 18 big league seasons. He was the National League's batting champion in 1917 and 1919 with .341 and .321 averages respectively. He played in 1,967 games, scored 1,097 runs and made 2,377 hits during his long career. In addition, he was considered one of the best defensive outfielders of his era.

McKechnie was an active player from 1907 through 1920, during which time he batted .252 as an outfielder with seven major league teams. But it was as a manager that the "Deacon" had gained fame.

Led Bucs To Pennant

McKechnie led the Pittsburgh Pirates to the NL pennant in 1925, duplicated the feat with the St. Louis Cardinals in 1926 and brought the Cincinnati Reds two straight National League championships in 1939 and 1940.

McKechnie also managed the Boston team in the NL but failed to achieve any pennant success.

Bill McKechnie Played Here In Pom Loop Days

Election of William B. McKechnie to Baseball's Hall of Fame yesterday should bring back memories of Cumberland "old timers" to the days when Cumberland was represented in the P.O.M. (Pennsylvania-Ohio-Maryland) League and the "Deacon" played third base for Washington, Pa.

A native of Wilkesburg, Pa., McKechnie started his playing career with Washington in 1906 and also played in the P.O.M. in 1907.

In the majors he played with Pittsburgh, the Boston Braves, the New York Highlanders (now the Yankees), Cincinnati and the New York Giants. He also played in the short-lived Federal League with Indianapolis in 1914 and Newark in 1915.

On July 20, 1916, McKechnie along with Christy Mathewson and Edd Roush was traded by the New York Giants to Cincinnati for Charley Herzog and Wade Killefer. A coincidence is that both McKechnie and Roush were voted into the Hall of Fame on the same day.

Bill McKechnie, Jr., son of the Hall of Famer, played with Froburg in the 1940s during the summer months when he was attending Penn State University. Bill, Jr., served as supervisor of farm clubs for the Cincinnati Reds from 1952 through 1958.

Marine Breaks Bragg's Indoor Vaulting Mark

Uelses Sets Record 15 Ft., 10 1/4 Inches

WASHINGTON (AP) — John Uelses, a German-born U.S. Marine, set a world indoor pole vault record Saturday night by soaring 15 feet, 10 1/4 inches. Don Bragg held the old record of 15 feet, 9 1/2 inches.

Uelses, competing in the AAU division of an invitational meet, exceeded the present listed outdoor record of 15 feet, 9 1/4 inches set in 1957 by Bob Gutowski. He equaled a pending outdoor mark made by George Davies of Oklahoma last July.

Indoor marks are not recognized as world records by the International Amateur Athletic Federation since indoor vaulting is not widespread outside North America. But the marks are recognized informally as world records in American track and field circles.

Uelses used one of the fiber glass poles which have been creating a sensation in vaulting.

A native of Berlin, Uelses came to the United States when he was 12 years old and until last night his previous high mark of 15-6 1/2 was made at New Orleans in the Sugar Bowl Games a month ago.

Uelses suffered a groin injury while competing at New Orleans and this kept him from clearing 14 feet at a Baltimore meet only two weeks ago. Influenced also by the late hour, Uelses decided not to push his luck and risk re-injury by shooting for 16 feet while he was obvious hot.

But, he said, "I'll make that 16 feet pretty soon."

The record vault came so late that only a few of the original 2,000 spectators still were at the D. C. Armory to see it.

Uelses attended the University of Alabama for one semester before he joined the Marines and began competing for them three years ago. He is assigned to the Marine base at Quantico, Va.

Warriors Chalk Up 6th In Row, 133-129

BOSTON (UPI) — Rookie Tom Meschery sank a pair of free throws with 31 seconds remaining in overtime to give the Philadelphia Warriors a 133-129 National Basketball Association win on Sunday over the champion Boston Celtics.

The Warriors overcame a nine point deficit in the fourth quarter and sent the game into overtime when Tom Gola converted two free throws with 15 seconds of regulation time remaining. The Celtics, playing without the injured Bill Russell, lost four other players on fouls in the game, Jim Loscutt, Frank Ramsey, Tom Sanders and K.C. Jones.

The loss was the fourth straight for the three-time champion Celtics, the club's longest losing streak in the past two NBA seasons. All four defeats have come since Russell suffered a foot injury a week ago. The win was the sixth straight for the Warriors, who pulled to within six games of the Eastern Division-leading Celtics.

Paul Arizin was the only member of the Warriors to foul out of the rough and tumble game before 6,604 at Boston Garden.

NEW YORK RANGERS DROP 10TH IN ROW

NEW YORK (UPI) — Bobby Hull climaxed a four - goal weekend spree by scoring twice Sunday to lead the Chicago Black Hawks to a 3-0 victory over New York and extend the Rangers' losing streak to 10 straight games.

Hull, who scored twice against Boston Saturday night, netted his 24th and 25th goals of the season as the Rangers' losing skein stretched to within one of the 11 straight dropped by the 1943-44 club.

Mountaineers Enter Kentucky Tourney

LEXINGTON, Ky. (UPI) — West Virginia, along with Iowa, Oregon State and host Kentucky will participate in the Kentucky Invitational here Dec. 21-22.

West Virginia won the KIT twice in three appearances. University of Kentucky Athletic Director Bernie Shively said the appearances of the Mountaineers all assures one of the most successful of the tournaments.

When West Virginia appeared in 1959, each team received a $15,420 share, a record for college holiday tournaments.

West Virginia Plays Gobblers At Blacksburg

Seeks 11th Straight Conference Victory

BLACKSBURG, Va. (UPI) — West Virginia will be shooting for its 11th consecutive Southern Conference win when it meets Virginia Tech here Monday night but the Gobblers could be spoilers.

West Virginia had to work hard to defeat William & Mary 80-71 at Norfolk, Va., Saturday. Meanwhile, Virginia Tech dropped an 80-83 loss to Furman.

However, Tech gave West Virginia one of its roughest games of the season in Morgantown before bowing 85-81.

Coach George King is hoping his ace scoring star, Rod Thorn, has regained his shooting eye after one of his poorest nights of the season against William & Mary. Thorn scored only three field goals and picked up five more points at the free throw line for a total of 11 points.

Tom Lowry, the rapidly improving 6-foot-8 sophomore center pulled the slow - starting Mountaineers together in the second half against William & Mary to send them on to the win.

Lowry scored 10 points in a five minute span to push West Virginia into an front 64-50 and the game was never in doubt after that.

Jim McCormick scored 20 points to lead all scorers. West Virginia showed its strength under the boards with most of Lowry's seven field goals coming on tip-ins or easy layups.

Roger Bergey and Kenny Roberts, a pair of dead-eye guards, did yeoman's work for the Indians, scoring 15 points each to keep William & Mary in the game.

Following the VPI game, West Virginia will meet Wake Forest in Charleston, W. Va., Wednesday night.

Littler Rallies To Win After Blowing Big Lead

Gene Edges Knudson By Two Strokes In $50,000 Golf Event

By JACK STEVENSON
Associated Press Sports Writer
SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — United States Open champion Gene Littler rallied dramatically to win the $50,000 San Francisco International Golf Tournament Sunday with a 72-hole score of 274 after blowing a six-stroke lead.

The victory, his first since winning the National title last June 17, meant $9,000 to the 31-year-old San Diego pro, yet few thought he would need a comeback to do it.

He started the final 18 holes half a dozen strokes ahead of his nearest three rivals. But Canadian George Knudson, a 24-year-old assistant pro from Toronto, pulled even with Gene after 13 holes.

On the 14th, the Californian scored a birdie to go ahead again, this time continuing on to win by two strokes with Knudson second at 276.

Knudson Shoots 69

Littler shot a two-over-par 73 Sunday while Knudson had a 69 for 276.

Littler played his first nine Sunday in even par, while Knudson was three under at 33. When Gene went over par on each of the 11th, 12th and 13th holes, the young Canadian shot regulation figures and pulled even.

Littler had gone over par only twice in his first 64 holes over the Harding Park municipal course.

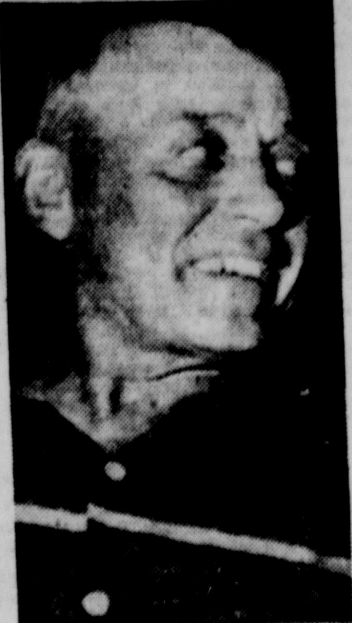

On the 14th, Littler put his second shot five feet from the pin at the 400-yard hole and sank his putt. Completely in control again, he birdied the 16th with a four-footer, still using a putter he bought for a dollar three months ago.

Littler was looking grim indeed until the 14th when he scored his first birdie of the day. Then he allowed himself a small smile.

Knudson didn't collect a birdie on the final nine and both he and Littler went over par on the 18th to finish out their duel.

Douglas Wins At Salisbury

Beats Whitney Reed In Indoor Tourney

SALISBURY (AP) — Jon Douglas upset Whitney Reed, the nation's No. 1 ranked player, to capture the Salisbury Indoor Invitational Tennis Tournament Sunday.

Douglas, the former Stanford University football player from Santa Monica, Calif., who is ranked fourth in the nation, dropped the first two sets but rallied for a 3-6, 2-6, 6-3, 6-4, 7-5 victory.

With the deciding set tied at 5-all, Douglas broke Reed's service and then easily held his own service without losing a point to close out the match before about 800 spectators in the Wicomico Youth and Civic Center.

Both finalists were members of the 1961 U. S. Davis Cup team, Reed, from Alameda, Calif., was seeded first in the tournament and Douglas second.

Douglas won the Philadelphia invitational indoor title last week in the same manner, coming back after dropping the first two sets to whip Ron Holmberg of Brooklyn, N. Y.

In the doubles finals, Douglas and Donald Dell of Bethesda, Md., defeated Reed and Gene Scott of St. James, New York, 10-8, 6-2.

Bill McKechnie And Edd Roush Elected To Baseball Hall Of Fame

"Deacon" Led Four National Flag Winners

Piloted Bucs To 1925 Pennant; Roush Hit .325 In 18 Seasons

NEW YORK UPI—Edd Roush, former Cincinnati Reds' outfielder who won fame as a two-time National League batting champion, and William B. McKechnie, who managed three different NL clubs to pennants, were elected to the Hall of Fame Sunday by a special old timers selection committee.

The committee of 12 old-time experts, headed by sportswriter Warren Brown of Chicago, was unanimous in its selections. A three-quarters majority of the votes was required for election.

Roush Batted .325

Roush, a native of Oakland City, Ind., who compiled a .325 batting average in 18 big league seasons, and McKechnie, who skipped Pittsburgh, St. Louis and Cincinnati to pennants, will be formally installed in the baseball shrine at Cooperstown, N.Y., next July. They will be enshrined along with former Cleveland Indian strikeout king Bob Feller and ex-Brooklyn Dodger firebrand Jackie Robinson, who were voted into the Hall of Fame by the Baseball Writers Association of America on Jan. 23.

The old timers selection committee voted on players whose careers ended 30 or more years ago. Roush's big league career was between 1913 and 1931.

Won Batting Titles

Roush, played with the Reds for 12 of his 18 big league seasons. He was the National League's batting champion in 1917 and 1919 with .341 and .321 averages respectively. He played in 1,967 games, scored 1,097 runs and made 2,377 hits during his long career. In addition, he was considered one of the best defensive outfielders of his era.

McKechnie was an active player from 1907 through 1920, during which time he batted .252 as an outfielder with seven major league teams. But it was as a manager that the "Deacon" had gained fame.

Led Bucs To Pennant

McKechnie led the Pittsburgh Pirates to the NL pennant in 1925, duplicated the feat with the St. Louis Cardinals in 1928 and brought the Cincinnati Reds two straight National League championships in 1939 and 1940.

McKechnie also managed the Boston team in the NL but failed to achieve any pennant success.

Bill McKechnie Played Here In Pom Loop Days

Election of William B. McKechnie to Baseball's Hall of Fame yesterday should bring back memories of Cumberland "old-timers" to the days when Cumberland was represented in the P.O.M. (Pennsylvania-Ohio-Maryland) League and the "Deacon" played third base for Washington, Pa.

A native of Wilkesburg, Pa., McKechnie started his playing career with Washington in 1906 and also played in the P.O.M. in 1907.

In the majors he played with Pittsburgh, the Boston Braves, the New York Highlanders (now the Yankees), Cincinnati and the New York Giants. He also played in the short-lived Federal League with Indianapolis in 1914 and Newark in 1915.

On July 20, 1916, McKechnie along with Christy Mathewson and Edd Roush was traded by the New York Giants to Cincinnati for Charley Herzog and Wade Killefer. A coincidence is that both McKechnie and Roush were voted into the Hall of Fame on the same day.

Bill McKechnie, Jr., son of the Hall of Famer, played with Frostburg in the 1940s during the summer months when he was attending Penn State University. Bill, Jr., served as supervisor of farm clubs for the Cincinnati Reds from 1952 through 1958.

Marine Breaks Bragg's Indoor Vaulting Mark

Uel's Sets Record 15 Ft., 10 1/4 Inches

WASHINGTON (AP)—John Uelses, a German-born U.S. Marine, set a world indoor pole vault record Saturday night by soaring 15 feet, 10 1/4 inches. Don Bragg held the old record of 15 feet, 9 1/2 inches.

Uelses, competing in the AAU division of an invitational meet, exceeded the present listed outdoor record of 15 feet, 9 1/4 inches set in 1957 by Bob Gutowski. He equaled a pending outdoor mark made by George Davies of Oklahoma last July.

Indoor marks are not recognized as world records by the International Amateur Athletic Federation since indoor vaulting is not widespread outside North America. But the marks are recognized informally as world records in American track and field circles.

Uelses used one of the fiber glass poles which have been creating a sensation in vaulting.

A native of Berlin, Uelses came to the United States when he was 12 years old and until last night his previous high mark of 15-6 1/2 was made at New Orleans in the Sugar Bowl Games a month ago.

Uelses suffered a groin injury while competing at New Orleans and this kept him from clearing 14 feet at a Baltimore meet only two weeks ago. Influenced also by the late hour, Uelses decided not to push his luck and risk re-injury by shooting for 16 feet while he was obvious hot.

But, he said, "I'll make that 16 feet pretty soon."

The record vault came so late that only a few of the original 2,000 spectators still were at the D. C. Armory to see it.

Uelses attended the University of Alabama for one semester before he joined the Marines and began competing for three years ago. He is assigned to the Marine base at Quantico, Va.

Warriors Chalk Up 6th In Row, 133-129

BOSTON (UPI)—Rookie Tom Meschery sank a pair of free throws with 31 seconds remaining in overtime to give the Philadelphia Warriors a 133-129 National Basketball Association win on Sunday over the champion Boston Celtics.

The Warriors overcame a nine point deficit in the fourth quarter and sent the game into overtime when Tom Gola converted two free throws with 15 seconds of regulation time remaining. The Celtics, playing without the injured Bill Russell, lost four other players on fouls in the game, Jim Loscutoff, Frank Ramsey, Tom Sanders and K.C. Jones.

The loss was the fourth straight for the three-time champion Celtics, the club's longest losing streak in the past two NBA seasons. All four defeats have come since Russell suffered a foot injury a week ago. The win was the sixth straight for the Warriors, who pulled to within six games of the Eastern Division-leading Celtics.

Paul Arizin was the only member of the Warriors to foul out of the rough and tumble game before 6,604 at Boston Garden.

In Memoriam

In sad but loving remembrance of our father, Robert L. Strawderman, who passed away 1 year ago today, Jan. 28, 1961.

No one knows how much we miss you, And how the bitter pain we have known.

Since you left us life doesn't seem the same.

What we would give to clasp your hand, And see your face again.

For there is no other dear dad, That can ever take your place.

In Memoriam

In sad but loving remembrance of our father, Robert L. Strawderman, who passed away 1 year ago today, Jan. 28, 1961.

No one knows how much we miss you, And how the bitter pain we have known, Since you left us life doesn't seem the same.

We would give to clasp your hand, And see your face again, For there is no other dearer dad, That can ever take your place.

Sadly missed by
SONS & DAUGHTERS

Secrets Of Charm
by John Robert Powers

Anticipation Is Half The Fun

Don't keep everything a surprise when you're planning something special for someone you love. Let them in on your "secrets" occasionally so that they can share the same fun you're having—looking forward to something pleasant. Half the fun in life is in anticipation of joy. Perhaps this is what is meant by "the pursuit of happiness."

If there ever was a time of year when happy anticipation settles to a long and deadly low, it's NOW. Mid-winter. The holidays are done. Memories of last summer's vacation have already dimmed. The summer vacation ahead is too far in the future to seem real. Everybody seems to get that locked-in, let-down feeling in January ... men, women AND children. And it's a lasting one, too, an ache that never seems to subside until spring.

So, I hope you've saved a few surprises for your friends and family. For NOW. (And I certainly hope that someone has a surprise or two in store for you, also.) It needn't be costly and it shouldn't be complicated. The smallest and simplest expressions of love and thoughtfulness are enough to relieve monotonous mid-winter routine.

Just be sure to spring your surprise early if you think the recipient NEEDS a special lift for his spirits at that particular time. Permitting him to enjoy the gift, the treat or the party in advance is a gift in itself—one he'll really relish and appreciate on bleak days that beg for brightening.

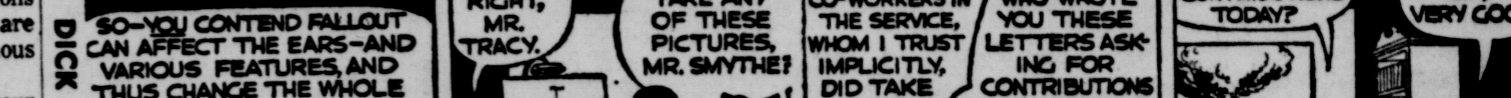

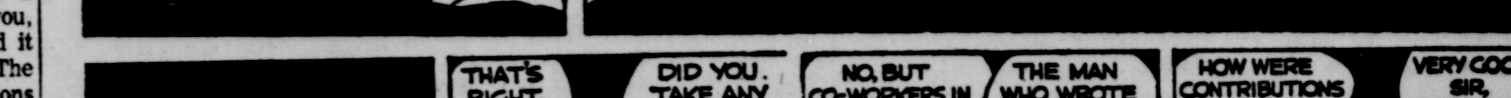

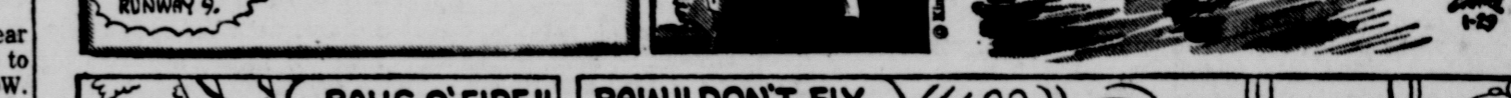

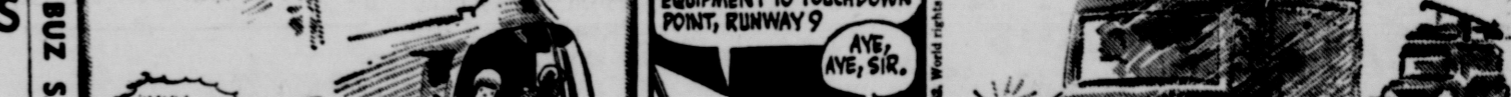

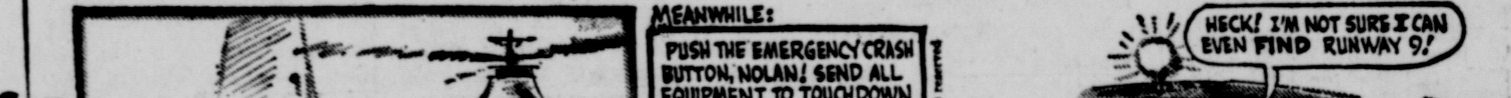

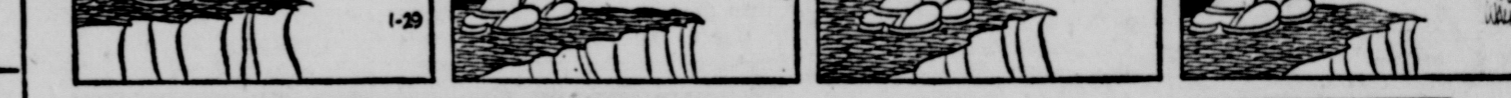

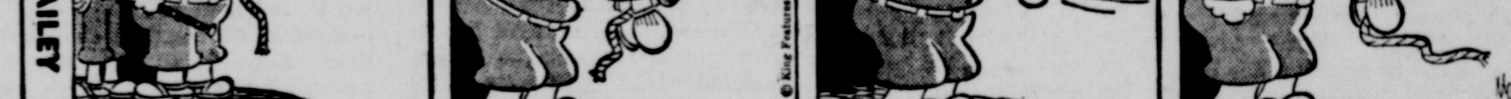

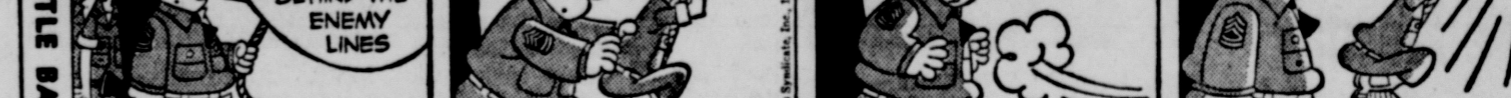

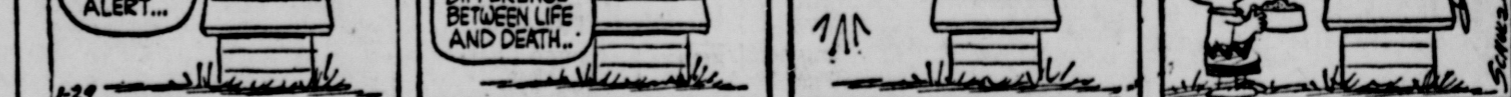

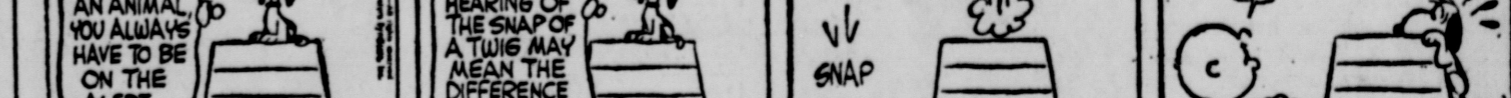

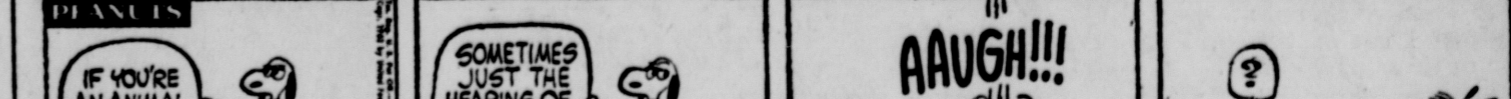

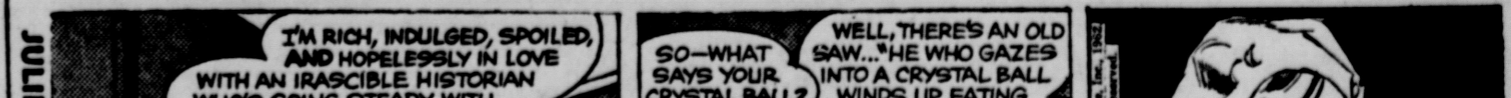

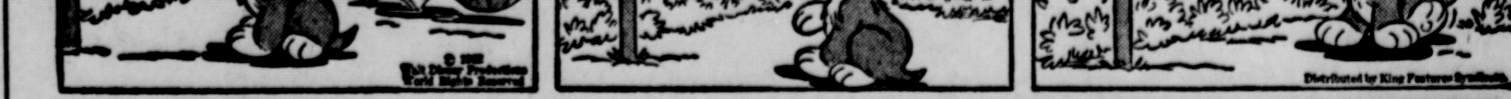

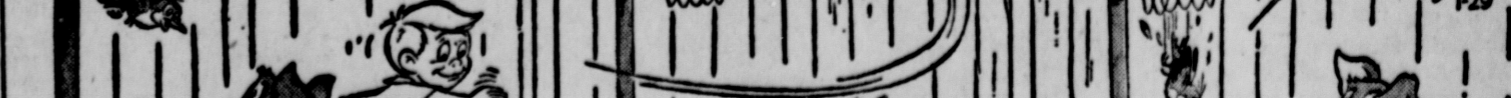

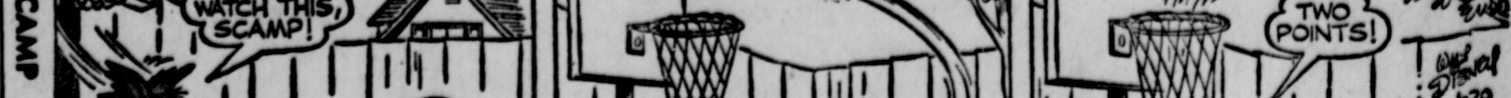

Sometimes, a program with a purpose will help the days pass faster. Many women (including Powers models) consider mid-winter the perfect time to start preparing themselves for summer with a regular round of diet and exercise. And they have the happy anticipation of better health and a better figure to spur them along.

If you would like to follow their example, send today for my pamphlet called "Summerizing Your Beauty." Mail your request to me, John Robert Powers, c/o this newspaper, enclosing 10c and a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

Area Man Dies Beneath Car As Jack Slips

Richard T. Conrad
Victim Of Accident

A Flintstone area man suffocated late yesterday afternoon when the car on which he was working came down upon his chest after a bumper jack slipped.

He was Richard Theodore Conrad, 24, of Route 1, Little Orleans. He was found dead beneath the vehicle about 5:50 p. m. yesterday.

Maryland State Police said Mr. Conrad, who lived in the Piney Plains section, began repairing his car in front of his trailer home about 2 p. m.

Several hours later, the bumper jack used to raise the car, which was parked on a slight incline, slipped out and allowed the frame of the car to come down across his chest.

The Medical Examiner's Office said death was accidental and resulted from asphyxiation resulting from compression of the chest.

Mr. Conrad was found by his wife, Mrs. Norma Marie (Trail) Conrad, who had gone to visit her parents while her husband was working on the car, and returned with her father.

The father, state police said, put the jack back under the car and removed the body.

The body was taken to the Grove Funeral Home in Hancock by the Flintstone Volunteer Fire Company ambulance, and later was transferred to the Stewart Funeral Home in Everett, Pa., for services and interment.

Survivors include his wife, their small child and his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Theodore Conrad, of the Chaneyville section.

Trooper John W. McFarland investigated for Maryland State Police.

Six Types Of U. S. Taxes Due Wednesday

Employers are reminded by Irving Machiz, district director of Internal Revenue for the Baltimore district, that six types of taxes are due Wednesday. Four are for the fourth quarter ending December 31, 1961, and two are annual returns.

Taxes are due from employers who file quarterly federal tax returns Form 941. This combined return for reporting withholding and Social Security taxes on employees must be accompanied with all withholding tax statements (Form W-2—Copy A) together with Form W-3 which is a reconciliation of income taxes withheld from wages during calendar year 1961.

Employers who have domestic servants, such as janitors, cooks, maids, chauffeurs and other workers who perform services of a household nature, are subject to Social Security taxes if $50 or more was paid in wages in the fourth quarter of 1961.

Returns from persons liable for quarterly excise tax returns (Form 720) are also due January 31, closing out the fourth quarter December 31, 1961. Excise taxes include retail dealers excise taxes, excise taxes on facilities and services, manufacturers excise taxes and taxes on products and commodities.

Employers who during 1961 had four or more employees on 20 or more days, each day being in a different calendar week, are required to file Form 940, federal unemployment tax. This form is required to be filed annually with remittance.

Final income tax returns are due Wednesday from those taxpayers who did not remit the fourth quarter estimated tax due January 15.

Farmers are also reminded that Form 943, employers tax return for agricultural employees is due Wednesday.

Further information may be obtained at the local Internal Revenue office. Mr. Machiz warned employers to avoid penalties by filing returns timely and by making payment of the tax due.

Sludge Being Stockpiled At Sewage Plant

Is Available To Residents Of City

Dried sludge from the Cumberland Sewage Treatment Plant is being stockpiled near the plant and is available to residents on a "come and get it" basis.

William F. Miller, foreman, said over 20 tons of the soil conditioner has been dumped to the right of the road which leads to the plant, and that all excess sludge will be placed there as it is available.

The sludge — the solid residue from treated sewage — is considered a soil conditioner rather than a fertilizer, Mr. Miller said.

Due to the dearth of farmyard manure and the need of many soils for humus, the controlled use of dried sludge is considered desirable under the proper conditions. De-watered, air-dried digested sludge such as the Cumberland plant produces, is a safe soil conditioner to use, Mr. Miller said.

He suggested that the following rules, adopted by a number of state health departments, be followed when handling sludge:

Suggest Rules

Air-dried digested sludge, preferably stored for several months, may be used on lawns and the soil surrounding trees, shrubs and flowers. It may also be used on land used for vegetable growing provided the edible portion of the crops grow above the ground, or the crops are such that they are cooked before eating.

In the case of vegetables grown in contact with the soil and eaten raw, dried digested sludge should always be applied to the soil the previous fall and plowed under either immediately or the following spring. No more sludge should be used during the growing season.

Even though sludge is considered safe, avoid handling with the bare hands, and wash hands carefully with soap and hot water after handling it. Digested sludges are materials of moderate but definite value as a source of slowly available nitrogen, trace elements, and growth promoting substances. They are comparable with farmyard manure, except for a deficiency of potash.

Odor Is Problem

Sludge applied at a rate of about 10 tons per acre, rather than higher rates, will improve the yield of first year crops. Increased crop yields often extend into the third year after a single sludge application.

It should be emphasized that sludge is not a balanced food for plants. Its application, however, has a mechanical effect on the soil and will improve its texture. The value of sludge should not be judged by comparison of chemical analyses with artificial fertilizers, but rather by the results it produces in plant growth.

Since there is some odor nuisance when taking the sludge from drying beds, the city is stockpiling some sludge where the weather will get to it and eliminate the odor.

Local 1874 Opens Runoff Election

Local 1874, Textile Workers Union, AFL-CIO, will conduct a runoff election today through Wednesday to elect a vice president and secretary-treasurer.

Certified for the election are James Filsinger, Eckhart, and Carl Ryan, for vice president, and Charles Brode and Charles Jones, for secretary-treasurer.

Other officers headed by John G. Thomas, president, were elected last week.

SEEKS RE-ELECTION—Lester B. Reed, of Mt. Savage, member of the House of Delegates since 1939, has announced his candidacy for re-election in the May 15 Republican primary. Mr. Reed has been a member of the House longer than any other present delegate, and has served as minority floor leader in the last three sessions of the House.

Farrell, Nixon And VanMeter Are Appointed

Tawes Acts Quickly To Fill Vacancies

Gov. J. Millard Tawes yesterday notified William L. Wilson, chairman of the Allegany County Democratic State Central Committee, that he has acted favorably upon three recommendations of the committee.

Gov. Tawes said he has signed commissions appointed Raymond T. "Pat" Farrell, 519 Fayette Street, as a member of the Orphans Court here and that a commission has also been signed elevating Orphans Court Judge J. French VanMeter to chief judge of the Orphans Court. VanMeter, of Cresaptown, succeeds the late Chief Judge William C. Abbott of Lonaconing, who died January 13, and Judge Farrell succeeds Judge VanMeter on the panel.

Gov. Tawes said he has also signed a commission naming John L. Nixon of Oldtown to the position of trial magistrate at Oldtown. Mr. Nixon, who is also postmaster at Oldtown, succeeds the late Ned R. Hise.

These three new appointees will go to the office of the clerk of Circuit Court here to obtain their commissions, to take their oaths of office and otherwise qualify. Mr. Wilson explained.

The Democratic Committee met last Thursday and unanimously endorsed the three men for the appointments. Committee members expressed their appreciation upon the prompt action by Gov. Tawes.

The program for the Lions Club meeting at 12:15 p. m. Wednesday in Central YMCA will be in charge of David A. Powers, chairman of the club's safety committee.

Tawes Would Equalize Pay At Colleges

Professor Ranks, Raises Proposed

ANNAPOLIS (AP)—Gov. Tawes will propose next month that the basic pay at the five state teacher colleges be raised to a par with the University of Maryland and Morgan State.

He also will recommend that the legislature increase the maximum pay for professors and associates at the university by 20 per cent.

The rank of professor also would be established for the first time at the teacher colleges, according to the governor's announcement Saturday.

He estimated the cost of the salary changes would be $380,000.

"I consider the adoption of a uniform base scale for all the institutions, with the same scale for each in the instructor and assistant professor ranks, a move of primary importance," the governor said. "The adoption of professional rank for the five teacher colleges is a significant change."

Assistants would be paid on a scale of $5,000 to $6,000 at all the state institutions of higher learning. They now are paid $3,850 to $5,280 at the teacher colleges in Salisbury, Frostburg, Towson, Bowie and Coppin in Baltimore.

The scale for assistant professors would be $6,000-$7,250 compared to the $4,950-$6,820 presently in effect at the teacher colleges.

Associate professors at the teacher colleges would be eligible for $7,500-$9,500 compared to the present $5,500-$7,370.

Full professors at the teacher colleges and Morgan would receive from $9,500 to $12,500. The present maximum pay at the teacher colleges is $8,470 and at Morgan $10,000.

At the university, the associate professor scale would range from $7,500 to $9,500 and for professors from $9,500 to $15,000. The maximums now are $11,000 and $12,500.

Gov. Tawes said the increased maximums are designed to enable the university to compete better for more experienced professors and to keep the ones it has.

Mahoney Gets Credit—BALTIMORE (AP)—George P. Mahoney was given credit Sunday for pay raises proposed by Gov. Tawes for the faculty at the University of Maryland, Morgan State College, and the five state teachers colleges.

The praise for Mahoney, who will oppose Tawes in the Democratic gubernatorial primary, came from his own running mate for the U.S. Senate, Blair Lee III.

Lee, chairman of the Education Committee in the Maryland House of Delegates, said Mahoney called for improved salary scales four months ago and "stressed the importance of bringing Morgan and the teachers colleges up to the base salary levels of the University of Maryland."

Mahoney promised "to carry out the program in 1963 if Tawes failed to do it in 1962," Lee said.

"The bulk of this program was recommended by the state board of education two years ago, and Gov. Tawes has been backing and filling ever since," Lee's statement said. "Now, with Mahoney breathing down his neck, he has finally started to move."

Dimes Drive Early Total Is $3,413

The Allegany County Mothers March to raise funds to continue the war against polio, arthritis and birth defects, showed an early total of contributions of $3,413 last night, according to Philmore F. Fleming, general chairman.

The report, compiled at the collection center in the Times-News library, does not include collections from Frostburg, Lonaconing, Westernport, LaVale, Barton, Midland or Mt. Savage, campaign workers said.

The tabulation last night was in charge of Mrs. Ethel M. Thayer, executive secretary of the local chapter, assisted by Mrs. Joyce Vowell and Mrs. Elizabeth Nave, co-chairmen of the Mothers March, and a corps of volunteers.

Mrs. Vowell said the Mothers Marchers included 28 area chairmen, with neighborhood captains, and teams of solicitors, knocking on every door in the county. She estimated that more than 1,000 persons took part in yesterday's effort.

Among the volunteers this year were a number of young people representing teen-age clubs and young social groups. Girl Scouts and others had previously assisted in preparing literature and materials used in the campaign.

Leaders said it will be several days before a full tabulation of all the returns can be completed and a final report issued.

McMullen Will Help Prosecute At Alvey Trial

Opens Today In Federal Court

A young Cumberlander will help prosecute Joseph Halverman Alvey, 42, who goes on trial this morning in Federal District Court at Baltimore for the 1960 kidnapping of seven-year-old Michael Condeti.

Assistant U.S. Attorney Daniel F. McMullen, son of Mr. and Mrs. Daniel F. McMullen, 826 Buckingham Road, The Dingle, will assist U.S. Attorney Joseph D. Tydings at the prosecution table.

The crime, which occurred in November 1960, inflamed tempers in the Washington area because of its brutal nature. The little Condeti boy was kidnapped near his Washington home, was sexually assaulted and suffocated in a wooded area of Prince Georges County.

Alvey will be tried before a jury of Maryland citizens. Federal Judge Roszel C. Thomsen will preside, and the trial is expected to last about a week.

Writing in the Washington Sunday Star yesterday, Jerry O'Leary Jr. described the prosecutors this way:

"Mr. Tydings, a former member of the Maryland House of Delegates, is the adopted son of the late former Senator Millard E. Tydings. He is a blond, handsome man, a former corporal in the Army, not yet a year in his job, but known for his passionate love for justice. At a pretrial hearing in the Alvey case, he commented: 'It is our role to see that justice is done, not to obtain convictions.'"

"Mr. McMullen is pleasant and soft-spoken in court. Even newer to prosecution than Mr. Tydings, Mr. McMullen is a native of Cumberland, a graduate of Georgetown University and the University of Maryland Law School. He was a lieutenant in the Air Force and a Strategic Air Command intelligence officer before spending three years in the Justice Department in Washington."

Such an approach, the report suggested, warrants investigation for the Georges Creek Valley. "Other communities, for example, Midlothian, could obtain adequately treated water by abandoning their present sources and purchasing water from a nearby satisfactory system."

Consideration must also be given, the report said, to providing central water systems for communities which now rely on unsatisfactory private wells. It cited Ellerslie as an example, saying that a Health Department survey there disclosed that about three out of four samples obtained from private wells showed water of unsafe bacteriological quality.

The department pledged that more and broader surveys of this type will be made by the state and county health departments.

The department said any discussion of water systems must remain somewhat speculative until firm information is available on a proposal to obtain water from the Savage River impoundment, adding:

"Since it is not known when, or if this project will become a reality, how much water will be made available, or the area the transmission line will traverse, it is impossible to determine the effect the project may have. The situation, the department said, will be clarified when an engineering study has been made by the county's consulting engineers.

The commission was advised that provisions for additional sewerage facilities "will actually intensify the water supply problems, since it will promote additional population growth and increase water usage, concluding:

"The health and well-being of the people of Allegany County can be served only if effective action is taken in both sewerage and water supply."

Below Standard Systems Cited—(This is the first of a series of articles based on a State Health Department report to the Allegany County Sanitary Commission concerning the 14 water systems which serve residents of Allegany County.)

The larger water systems which serve Allegany County residents provide water of good quality and face chiefly problems of source and distribution. Most of the smaller systems have problems involving water quality, compounded in several instances by source and distribution inadequacies.

This is the board picture of a report prepared by the Division of Sanitary Engineering of the State Health Department for the Allegany County Sanitary Commission and prompted by concern over the quality of water distributed by the community water systems in Allegany County. The report notes also the magnitude of water supply problems which exist.

Four of the systems—Barrelville, Barton, Borden Shaft—Carlos and Lord—Woodland—Ocean—did not meet bacteriological standards for safe drinking water last year, the report said, adding:

"Over the years these same systems have failed to consistently produce water of safe bacteriological quality."

To Be Difficult—The upgrading of some of the systems, built many years ago when quality and construction standards were less rigid than today will be difficult, primarily for financial reasons, the report by Thomas D. McKewen and Raymond W. Ludlow Jr., said.

They stressed the need for the development of a comprehensive plan in the unincorporated areas surrounding Cumberland and Frostburg, and in such small communities as Midlothian, which is served by three separate systems.

Area Man Dies Beneath Car As Jack Slips

Richard T. Conrad Victim Of Accident

A Flintstone area man suffocated late yesterday afternoon when the car on which he was working came down upon his chest after a bumper jack slipped.

He was Richard Theodore Conrad, 24, of Route 1, Little Orleans. He was found dead beneath the vehicle about 5:50 p. m. yesterday.

Maryland State Police said Mr. Conrad, who lived in the Piney Plains section, began repairing his car in front of his trailer home about 2 p. m.

Several hours later, the bumper jack used to raise the car, which was parked on a slight incline, slipped out and allowed the frame of the car to come down across his chest.

The Medical Examiner's Office said death was accidental and resulted from asphyxiation resulting from compression of the chest.

Mr. Conrad was found by his wife, Mrs. Norma Marie (Trail) Conrad, who had gone to visit her parents while her husband was working on the car, and returned with her father.

The father, state police said, put the jack back under the car and removed the body.

The body was taken to the Grove Funeral Home in Hancock by the Flintstone Volunteer Fire Company ambulance, and later was transferred to the Stewart Funeral Home in Everett, Pa., for services and interment.

Survivors include his wife, their small child and his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Theodore Conrad, of the Chaneyville section.

Trooper John W. McFarland investigated for Maryland State Police.

Six Types Of U.S. Taxes Due Wednesday

Employers are reminded by Irving Machiz, district director of Internal Revenue for the Baltimore district, that six types of taxes are due Wednesday. Four are for the fourth quarter ending December 31, 1961, and two are annual returns.

Answer Two Calls

East Side Fire Company was called to 16 Schiller Terrace yesterday at 2:01 a. m. after a loose flue pipe allowed the basement to fill with coal smoke. There was no damage.

South End Fire Company was called to the B & O's Rolling Mill lot at 8:08 a. m. after a rubbish dump caught fire.

Tawes Would Equalize Pay At Colleges

Professor Ranks, Raises Proposed

ANNAPOLIS (AP)—Gov. Tawes will propose next month that the basic pay at the five state teacher colleges be raised to a par with the University of Maryland and Morgan State.

He also will recommend that the legislature increase the maximum pay for professors and associates at the university by 20 per cent.

The rank of professor also would be established for the first time at the teacher colleges, according to the governor's announcement Saturday.

He estimated the cost of the salary changes would be $380,000.

"I consider the adoption of a uniform base scale for all the institutions, with the same scale for each in the instructor and assistant professor ranks, a move of primary importance," the governor said. "The adoption of professional rank for the five teacher colleges is a significant change."

Assistants would be paid on a scale of $5,000 to $6,000 at all the state institutions of higher learning. They now are paid $3,850 to $5,280 at the teacher colleges in Salisbury, Frostburg, Towson, Bowie and Coppin in Baltimore.

The scale for assistant professors would be $6,000-$7,250 compared to the $4,950-$6,320 presently in effect at the teacher colleges.

Associate professors at the teacher colleges would be eligible for $7,500-$9,500 compared to the present $5,500-$7,370.

Full professors at the teacher colleges and Morgan would receive from $9,500 to $12,500. The present maximum pay at the teacher colleges is $8,470 and at Morgan $10,000.

At the university, the associate professor scale would range from $7,500 to $9,500 and for professors from $9,500 to $15,000. The maximums now are $11,000 and $12,500.

Gov. Tawes said the increased maximums are designed to enable the university to compete better for more experienced professors and to keep the ones it has.

Mahoney Gets Credit

BALTIMORE (AP)—George P. Mahoney was given credit Sunday for pay raises proposed by Gov. Tawes for the faculty at the University of Maryland, Morgan State College, and the five state teachers colleges.

The praise for Mahoney, who will oppose Tawes in the Democratic gubernatorial primary, came from his own running mate for the U.S. Senate, Blair Lee III.

Lee, chairman of the Education Committee in the Maryland House of Delegates, said Mahoney called for improved salary scales four months ago and "stressed the importance of bringing Morgan and the teachers colleges up to the base salary levels of the University of Maryland."

Mahoney promised "to carry out the program in 1963 if Tawes failed to do it in 1962," Lee said.

"The bulk of this program was recommended by the state board of education two years ago, and Gov. Tawes has been backing and filling ever since," Lee's statement said. "Now, with Mahoney breathing down his neck, he has finally started to move."

25 Complete First Aid Course

An American Red Cross standard first aid course was completed recently by 25 Frostburg State Teachers College students. The course was instructed by Dr. Harold J. Cordis, member of the college faculty.

Lions To Meet

The program for the Lions Club meeting at 12:15 p. m. Wednesday in Central YMCA will be in charge of David A. Powers, chairman of the club's safety committee.

Dimes Drive Early Total Is $3,413

The Allegany County Mothers March to raise funds to continue the war against polio, arthritis and birth defects, showed an early total of contributions of $3,413 last night, according to Philmore F. Fleming, general chairman.

The report, compiled at the collection center in the Times-News library, does not include collections from Frostburg, Lonaconing, Westernport, LaVale, Barton, Midland or Mt. Savage, campaign workers said.

The tabulation last night was in charge of Mrs. Ethel M. Thayer, executive secretary of the local chapter, assisted by Mrs. Joyce Vowell and Mrs. Elizabeth Nave, co-chairmen of the Mothers March, and a corps of volunteers.

Mrs. Vowell said the Mothers Marchers included 28 area chairmen, with neighborhood captains, and teams of solicitors, knocking on every door in the county. She estimated that more than 1,000 persons took part in yesterday's effort.

Among the volunteers this year were a number of young people representing teen-age clubs and young social groups. Girl Scouts and others had previously assisted in preparing literature and materials used in the campaign.

Leaders said it will be several days before a full tabulation of all the returns can be completed and a final report issued.

McMullen Will Help Prosecute At Alvey Trial

Opens Today In Federal Court

A young Cumberlander will help prosecute Joseph Halverman Alvey, 42, who goes on trial this morning in Federal District Court at Baltimore for the 1960 kidnapping murder of seven-year-old Michael Condeti.

Assistant U.S. Attorney Daniel F. McMullen, son of Mr. and Mrs. Daniel F. McMullen, 826 Buckingham Road, The Dingle, will assist U.S. Attorney Joseph D. Tydings at the prosecution table.

The crime, which occurred in November 1960, inflamed tempers in the Washington area because of its brutal nature. The little Condeti boy was kidnapped near his Washington home, was sexually assaulted and suffocated in a wooded area of Prince Georges County.

Alvey will be tried before a jury of Maryland citizens. Federal Judge Roszel C. Thomsen will preside, and the trial is expected to last about a week.

Writing in the Washington Sunday Star yesterday, Jerry O'Leary Jr. described the prosecutors this way:

"Mr. Tydings, a former member of the Maryland House of Delegates, is the adopted son of the late former Senator Millard E. Tydings. He is a blond, handsome man, a former corporal in the Army, not yet a year in his job, but known for his passionate love for justice. At a pretrial hearing in the Alvey case, he commented: 'It is our role to see that justice is done, not to obtain convictions.'"

"Mr. McMullen is pleasant and soft-spoken in court. Even newer to prosecution than Mr. Tydings, Mr. McMullen is a native of Cumberland, a graduate of Georgetown University and the University of Maryland Law School. He was a lieutenant in the Air Force and a Strategic Air Command intelligence officer before spending three years in the Justice Department in Washington."

Such an approach, the report suggested, warrants investigation for the Georges Creek Valley. "Other communities, for example, Midlothian, could obtain adequately treated water by abandoning their present sources and purchasing water from a nearby satisfactory system."

Consideration must also be given, the report said, to providing central water systems for communities which now rely on unsatisfactory private wells. It cited Ellerslie as an example, saying that a Health Department survey there disclosed that about three out of four samples obtained from private wells showed water of unsafe bacteriological quality.

Youths Are Caught

Two youths caught breaking windows of a home on Henderson Avenue last night face hearings in Juvenile Court here.

The lads, one 11 and the other 12, were arrested by Officer William A. Norris as they were throwing rocks through windows of the home at 243 Henderson Avenue.

The boys were turned over to their parents, who were advised to contact the owner of the property.

Report Notes Concern Over Water Quality

Below Standard Systems Cited

(This is the first of a series of articles based on a State Health Department report to the Allegany County Sanitary Commission concerning the 14 water systems which serve residents of Allegany County.)

The larger water systems which serve Allegany County residents provide water of good quality and face chiefly problems of source and distribution. Most of the smaller systems have problems involving water quality, compounded in several instances by source and distribution inadequacies.

This is the board picture of a report prepared by the Division of Sanitary Engineering of the State Health Department for the Allegany County Sanitary Commission and prompted by concern over the quality of water distributed by the community water systems in Allegany County. The report notes also the magnitude of water supply problems which exist.

Four of the systems—Barrelville, Barton, Borden Shaft—Carlos and Lord—Woodland—Ocean—did not meet bacteriological standards for safe drinking water last year, the report said, adding:

"Over the years these same systems have failed to consistently produce water of safe bacteriological quality."

To Be Difficult

The upgrading of some of the systems, built many years ago when quality and construction standards were less rigid than today will be difficult, primarily for financial reasons, the report by Thomas D. McKewen and Raymond W. Ludlow Jr., said.

They stressed the need for the development of a comprehensive plan in the unincorporated areas surrounding Cumberland and Frostburg, and in such small communities as Midlothian, which is served by three separate systems.

The solution to the water quality problem lies in provisions for adequate treatment facilities, and significant improvement can be made by improving the operation of existing chlorinating facilities and by providing them when they do not exist.

The report recognized that the Health Department is primarily responsible for effecting the improvements but said it is "hoped that the Sanitary Commission will be in a position to aid small communities . . . in the operation of treatment facilities."

Filtration Needed

It points out that chlorination is not the complete answer, since filtration plants will be needed for systems which get their water from a surface stream "if they are to constantly supply a safe and palatable water."

Since filtering facilities are probably beyond the resources of several small communities, the difficulty may be eased by integrating two or more systems to get a broader financial base for capital improvement, the report said.

Such an approach, the report suggested, warrants investigation for the Georges Creek Valley. "Other communities, for example, Midlothian, could obtain adequately treated water by abandoning their present sources and purchasing water from a nearby satisfactory system."

Consideration must also be given, the report said, to providing central water systems for communities which now rely on unsatisfactory private wells. It cited Ellerslie as an example, saying that a Health Department survey there disclosed that about three out of four samples obtained from private wells showed water of unsafe bacteriological quality.

Pledge Assistance

The department pledged that more and broader surveys of this type will be made by the state and county health departments.

The department said any discussion of water systems must remain somewhat speculative until firm information is available on a proposal to obtain water from the Savage River impoundment, adding:

"Since it is not known when, or if this project will become a reality, how much water will be made available, or the area the transmission line will traverse, it is impossible to determine the effect the project may have. The situation, the department said, will be clarified when an engineering study has been made by the county's consulting engineers.

The commission was advised that provisions for additional sewerage facilities "will actually intensify the water supply problems, since it will promote additional population growth and increase water usage, concluding: "The health and well-being of the people of Allegany County can be served only if effective action is taken in both sewerage and water supply."

New Sacred Heart Service

Devon R. Menges, commercial service engineer for the Chesapeake & Potomac Telephone Company, demonstrates another service provided at Sacred Heart Hospital to keep it fully up-to-date until a new $4-million installation is built here by the Sisters of Charity. Observers of the Sacred Heart staff, left to right, are Sister Natalie, nursing supervisor, Sister Mary Richard, administrator, and Mrs. Ruth Webster, R.N., charge nurse as Mr. Menges explains the operation of the small lighted telephones that are now a permanent installation in private rooms. Mr. Menges planned and coordinated the installation of the new phones to help meet the needs of the sustained record occupancy of Sacred Heart.
